MASS MEETING OF CITIZENS TO TALK BOND PROPOSITION

COUNCIL TO ASK ENGINEER TO COME HERE FOR PURPOSE

PEOPLE TO BE GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO ASK QUESTIONS AND GET ALL INFORMATION ABOUT WATERWORKS.

For the purpose of thoroughly explaining to the people of New Smyrna all points concerning the proposition to bond the city for $63,000 for the purpose of installing systems of waterworks and sewers and paying up the present indebtedness of the town, a mass meeting will soon be called, at which every member of the city council will be present and an engineer representing the J. B. McCrary company will also be present to fully explain the plans, specifications, etc.

The calling of such a mass meeting was authorized by a resolution passed by the city council at its regular meeting held Tuesday night, the time and place to be designated by the mayor and president of the council.

The resolution authorized the city clerk to ask the McCrary company when a competent representative of that company can be here to attend such a meeting, and the call will be issued by the mayor and council chairman to suit that convenience.

This action was taken by the council in response to numerous inquiries as to just what the proposed plans and specifications call for, on just what streets and alleys the sewer and water pipes are to be laid, the approximate cost per running foot of the sewers for each property owner, etc.

It is the purpose of the council to have the people fully informed on the proposition and give every voter and citizen an opportunity to obtain all desired information from an engineer competent to answer and explain all questions.

The special bonding election has been called for January 12, and the official call for the election is as follows:

SPECIAL ELECTION NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a resolution adopted by the city of New Smyrna, Florida, on the 15th day of October A. D., 1914, a special election will be held in said city for the purpose of affording the registered qualified electors of said city, who own and pay taxes on real and personal property in said city, the opportunity of voting upon and deciding the question as to whether or not bonds shall be issued for the following purposes:

$47,000 bonds for the erection and maintenance of a waterworks system.

$12,000 bonds for the establishment of a sewer system.

$4,000 bonds for the purpose of reducing the indebtedness of said city.

And to the election of five citizens of said city to act as a Board of Public Works as provided for in the Charter of said city.

Electors in order to be qualified to vote at said special election shall have been registered and shall own real estate and personal property in said city and shall have paid taxes thereon.

The said special election shall be held on the 12th day of January A. D., 1915, between the hours of 8 a. m. and sundown p. m., at the following polling place in said city, to-wit: The council chamber of the city hall of said city.

Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent (6 per cent) per annum, be in denominations of $1,000 each and be payable in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness, payable semi-annually on the first day of February and August at the Banking House of the National Bank of Commerce of the City and State of New York, at such other place as the City Council may indicate. Bonds to mature in ten, twenty and thirty years respectively, as provided in the resolution adopted calling said election, shall be in such form and contain such recitals and shall be executed in such manner as the City Council shall prescribe.

BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL the 15th day of October A. D., 1914. W. H. NEWELL, Mayor. F. A. NEWELL, City Clerk.

DESERTER FROM ARMY CONFESSES WHEN ARRESTED FOR STEALING BICYCLE BELONGING TO ADRIAN HATCH.

Preferring to take his chances with the war department as a deserter than to stand trial and receive sentence before the criminal court on a charge of stealing a bicycle, a young man giving his name as Clifford Brigham has appealed to the local officers to report him to the post from which he deserted immediately after his arrest.

Brigham came to New Smyrna a few days ago from the north, and being without money and having a strong desire to continue his way south he appropriated to his own use a bicycle belonging to Adrian Hatch, which had been left standing outside the exchange packing house.

When the bicycle was missed and no trace of it could be found L. L. Mosby at Oak Hill was communicated with by telephone and requested to keep a watch for the man and wheel. A few hours later Brigham rode the bicycle within Mosby's range of vision and was taken in charge by the Oak Hill man, who promptly brought his prisoner to New Smyrna and had him locked up.

Brigham acknowledged stealing the wheel and also gave out the information that he is a deserter from the United States army and is wanted in New York as a deserter. He asked that the commander of the fort from which he deserted be communicated with at once.

A memorandum book found in his pocket showed that he deserted from Fort Terry, N. Y., Nov. 11, and had been coming south since that time.

He was taken before Justice Newell, charged with petit larceny, and bound over to the criminal court for trial and sentence. He will probably have to serve his sentence here unless the federal authorities get him before sentence is pronounced.

BUILDING MUST BE MOVED SAYS THE CITY COUNCIL

That the building which stands out in the street at Faulkner and Julia streets should be moved back and that the order of the council passed some time ago shall be complied with, is the sentiment of the city council, and Councilman E. J. Rogers has been appointed as a special committee to confer with the owners of the building to make some arrangements to have the structure set back and a sidewalk constructed in front.

NEW COMMITTEE NAMED ON FIRE PROTECTION

The ordinance establishing a fire limit in the city of New Smyrna is now in effect and the plans for all buildings constructed within certain limits must be approved by the fire protection committee of the council. No new buildings may be constructed within this district in future without the approval of this committee, which will issue a permit for this purpose. The members of the fire protection committee are Councilmen Rogers, Brunson and Ross, the committee having been named by President Greer at the regular monthly meeting of the council this week. The fire district takes in practically all of the district from the river to Myrtle street and from Clinch street to Roscoe Lane.

BOB LEWIS TAKEN AT OCALA SAYS REPORT TO OFFICERS

MAN WANTED HERE ON CHARGE OF WIFE DESERTION SAID TO HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY MARION COUNTY SHERIFF.

"Bob" Lewis, wanted here on a charge of wife desertion, is said to have been arrested at Ocala and a warrant to bring him here to face that charge was issued by Justice Newell Wednesday and placed in the hands of the Volusia county sheriff to be served.

It is also claimed that Lewis is a deserter from the United States army, and before the warrant from this county could be served, a wire was received yesterday afternoon by Justice Newell that Lewis has been claimed by the federal authorities as a deserter.

It is reported that Lewis was taken yesterday to Norfolk, Va., to be turned over to the army officers. This will take away the chance of having him brought here for trial.

A telegram received by Justice Newell late yesterday evening indicates that Lewis may still be held in Ocala, and there is still a possibility he may be brought here for trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hughes of Lexington arrived during the week and are settled for the winter.

LOCAL KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ENTERTAIN VISITING KNIGHTS

DISTRICT CONVENTION OF ORDER HELD HERE WEDNESDAY NIGHT WITH MANY VISITORS IN ATTENDANCE.

What was probably the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of Knights of Pythias ever held in this city was that seen at Masonic hall Wednesday night, when the local lodge, Volusia No. 60, was host to the district convention of the order.

Delegates from many of the lodges in this district were present to enjoy the convention work and degree work and the banquet which followed the session.

The convention session was presided over by District Deputy R. C. Bushnell of DeLand, who was assisted in the work by Past Grand Chancellor J. T. Horner of Orlando and J. E. Lucas of Palatka, district deputy of that district.

By special arrangement the full rank work of three ranks was conferred on a candidate, the rank work being done by the officers and teams from Myrtle lodge of DeLand, which was represented at the session by about 30 members.

By vote of the convention the next district convention will be held with the Leesburg lodge, the date to be named by the members of that lodge and the district deputy.

Gossip of the Town by the Town Gossiper

I understand Rev. John Treadwell has some ideas of his own on the proposition to bond the city for waterworks and sewers and that he proposes to give his opinion on the matter in his sermon at the Trinity church next Sunday evening. I believe it would do every voter in New Smyrna good to hear the Rev. Treadwell next Sunday night.

"This is the season of the year when every person makes up his mind to do Christmas shopping early—and then proceeds to forget the good resolution until about December 23 or 24 and rushes wildly about from place to place, finds all the really choice things gone and has to put up with purchasing some present not at all suitable and not at all to be desired. It is the person who buys early, makes all the arrangements in advance and then sits quietly by and waits for the happy time to come who really enjoys the Christmas season. Try it this year."

Since the decision of the supreme court on the mandamus suit against the city treasurer has been handed down and the matter has now been taken out of the courts I sincerely hope the financial affairs of the city are getting straightened out enough so that the holders of city warrants and citizens in general will have some faith in the future of the city. It appears the city treasurer has no alternative now than to pay the city warrants in the order in which they are registered, as ordered by the city council.

I don't believe the people of New Smyrna fully realize what the recent organization of the Smyrna and Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association and the erection of the big packing house really means to this city. Any person who does not know what a hive of industry that big packing house is can be easily convinced by a visit to the institution and watching operations on the inside for a few minutes. All ready it has been found that the one building does not give enough room and an addition is to be built at once. The distribution of a payroll of $4,000 a month in this town, is something which should be given all the encouragement possible by the

SEVERAL WARRANTS ISSUED FOR ALLEGED VIOLATORS OF THE STATE FISHING LAW IN THIS COUNTY.

Special Deputy Game and Fish Warden Geo. Abbott has been busy along this section of the coast lately and as a result warrants for illegal fishing are said to have been issued and served on a number of alleged violators of the law.

D. C. Wise of Titusville was before Justice Newell for a hearing Monday afternoon, waived preliminary examination, and was sent over to DeLand to be tried by Judge Fish in the criminal court.

Warrants were also issued for Chris Robinson, James Robinson, D. Robinson and John Gold. All of these are said to have violated the state law on fishing in the vicinity of Oak Hill, but managed to make their getaway before the warrants could be served. The three Robinsons are said to have been arrested at Fort Lauderdale and Deputy Sheriff Brooke went to that place after them Tuesday afternoon. John Gold, who is said to live at Titusville, is reported to have gone to the vicinity of Lake Okeechobee and up to this time all efforts to apprehend him have been unsuccessful.

Last Saturday the special deputy warden is said to have found a net well filled with fish and confiscated the net and fish and brought them all up to this city. The owners of the net are said to have got away.

RECENT CONVENTION WAS WORTH MUCH TO EAST COAST

Stuart Times: If enthusiasm counts for anything the government will soon be owner of the East Coast Canal system. What the convention lacked in numbers it made up in boosting. No wonder the East Coast is growing with such a crowd of boosters as were gathered at Stuart last week. Such men as Currie, of West Palm Beach, a man with about 100 pounds of avoirdupois and several thousand pounds of progressiveness, Shuttles and Cole, of Miami; Heine and Matthews of Fort Lauderdale; the one and only Shuford of Pompano, whose speech was declared by many to be worth a thousand dollars to his section; Collins of Jupiter; Corbett of St. Augustine; who wants each day made 48 hours long so that he can accomplish more for his town; Bours of Jacksonville; Hulet of Daytona; Hamilton and Detwiler of New Smyrna; Brady of Cocoa; the Delray and Lake Worth boosters and our local men, McDonald and Hancock.

Such men as the above are worth thousands and thousands of dollars to Florida. They boost the East Coast day in and day out; they talk Florida to everybody. That is why the East Coast is growing faster than any section of Florida. It is the progressive spirit and everlasting boosting that wins every time.

In the selection of St. Augustine for the next convention the delegates did a wise thing as it will be better to hold it at the north end in 1915 and then let the 1916 convention be held at Miami or West Palm Beach or some other town south of Cocoa.

Both President Curry and Secretary Hamilton worked hard to make the convention a success and in this work they were ably assisted by Vice President Hancock of Stuart. These gentlemen spent their money and much valuable time without any recompense whatever and we are glad to see the delegates appreciate their services by re-electing them for another term.

The regular meeting of the Woman's club will be held next Monday afternoon and a musical program has been arranged by the members of the music committee. Following the program there will be a social hour and silver tea. All ladies of the town, whether members of the club or not, are invited to be present.

LOCAL ASSOCIATION FINDS PRESENT PLANT TOO SMALL

NEW SMYRNA HOUSE IS CALLED UPON TO HANDLE MANY THOUSANDS OF BOXES OF FRUIT FROM WILEY SECTION.

That the big packing house recently completed by the Smyrna and Hawks Park Citrus Growers' association is not large enough and does not provide sufficient room to carry on the work and store material, has been proven since operations were started last week in handling and packing the citrus fruits, and arrangements are now being made for an addition to be built on the east end of the building. Construction operations will be started soon and the addition rushed to completion.

The addition will be 20x80 feet, 7½ feet deep and extending the full width of the main structure, and will be used mainly for storing crate material and all other kinds of materials.

Indications are that more fruit will be handled at the packing house this season than was anticipated when construction on the main building was started and the main room does not provide the necessary storage room.

Packing operations are now going on nicely at the packing house and the fruit is being turned out in good condition. Efforts will be made to keep the plant going to practically its full capacity until all fruit signed up has been taken care of.

Because the packing plant at Wiley is not large enough to handle all of the fruit in that section the local association has been called to extend a helping hand and it is estimated that at least 20,000 boxes of fruit will be sent here for handling.

Tiring of his job of working on the streets without a boss, Lee Holton, colored, decided he would find an easier job and for a few days he fived high off the money he made selling chickens, and because his conscience did not trouble him about where he got the chickens or who raised them, he finally found himself in the clutches of the law. As a result he was bound over to the criminal court to answer a charge of stealing chickens and was taken to Tuesday. He entered a plea of guilty in criminal court.

Holton was up before the mayor about a month ago on a charge of discharging firearms within the city limits and was given a sentence of 30 days on the streets. He was serving out his time and everything was going along nicely until about ten days ago when City Marshal Brooke was taken sick and was unable to stay with the prisoner to see that he kept up with his work.

The opportunity was improved by Holton in thinking up some plan for making an easier living, and a few days later he is said to have blown some out as a full fledged chicken dealer and picked up a nice bit of change by selling nice, fat chickens around town for 50 cents each. Also it wasn't long before several persons began to miss their chickens of a morning and complaints were made to the city officers. Investigations followed and Holton is said to have been caught with some chickens belonging to D. C. Sivers, which he had just appropriated for himself, and was arraigned before Justice Newell, who promptly turned him over to Judge Fish at DeLand.

Holton is said to have sold 27 chickens before landed by the officers.

Also it wasn't long before several persons began to miss their chickens of a morning and complaints were made to the city officers. Investigations followed and Holton is said to have been caught with some chickens belonging to D. C. Silvers, which he had just appropriated for himself, and was arraigned before Justice Newell, who promptly turned him over to Judge Fish at DeLand.

Holton is said to have sold 27 chickens before landed by the officers.

GRATIFYING START IS MADE BY EDUCATORS

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED FRIDAY IN THE DAYTONA HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

One hundred per cent. of the high school teachers of the county were present. The absence of state high school inspector, Dr. Thackston, was a disappointment to the teachers, but Superintendent Sheppard very efficiently took charge of the organization. It was a day of real help and satisfaction to the teachers as many questions of vital importance in the progress of education were discussed, and helpful suggestions offered. The feeling of good fellowship encouraged informal discussions and brought out the best thought of the members.

Questions considered were: Course of study, promotions, system for permanent records, administration work, high school athletics. Various committees were appointed to take up the different parts of the work and report at a second meeting which is to be held at the Lakeland convention during the holidays.

Not the least of the day's enjoyments was a delightful dinner served in the domestic science rooms by the domestic science department of the Daytona high school. The dinner was efficiently served and speaks well for that department in our schools.

Origin of Word "Postal."
From the Latin word "postus," meaning stationed, this method of communication by means of relays placed at different points along the road came to be known as a post system and eventually as the postal system of today.

Objected to the "Buttoning."
Billie aged three years, was playing with his sister, when they began a quarrel, so she left the room and closed the door. Billie became very angry and immediately screamed: "Button that door!"

Cause of Paint Dust.
Paint dust is caused chiefly by rubbing old or new paint with dry sandpaper. This process is universally recognized as the most dangerous part of the painters' trade. It could be completely done away with by the use of cheap mineral oil to wet the sandpaper and catch the dust.

HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY FROM ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

ANNUAL CEREMONY OF MORE THAN USUAL INTEREST ATTRACTED GREAT CROWD TO THE NEW DAYTONA THEATER.

(From The Daytona Gazette-News)

The largest crowd that ever assembled at the New Daytona theater was attracted to that house Sunday evening to witness the annual memorial services held by Daytona Lodge, No. 1141, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

The doors were opened promptly at 7:30 o'clock and within a few minutes the theater was crowded and every available bit of standing room was occupied, while hundreds of people still besieged the doors, seeking to gain admission. To satisfy as many as possible of these disappointed persons, the windows and side entrance were thrown open, so that they might look on from the outside. Probably 1,000 or more people were within the building and the spectators included many residents of New Smyrna and DeLand, as well as nearby towns.

The Elks' memorial service is an annual event with all the lodges of the order and in connection with the ritualistic exercises by the officers and members of the local lodge an interesting musical program is arranged. On this occasion the address by Governor Park Trammell in eulogy of the departed members of the order and the presence of Saracina's Royal Italian band in its first appearance for the season were especial features of interest.

The members of the Elks' lodge filed into the theater at 7:30 o'clock, the officers taking their places in a semi circle on the stage and the others occupying seats reserved for them in front of the stage.

An overture by the Crystal orchestra preceded the opening ceremonies by the lodge which were followed by a selection by Saracina's band. This was followed by a solo, "Face to Face," by W. J. McDonald, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Otis Pellicier.

An interesting address on the "History and Origin of the Order" was delivered by Rev. William J. Drew, pastor of the Congregational church. Mr. Drew explained that he was not a member of the order, but said that many of its good features were plainly visible to all and its history was open to the investigation of any one. He followed this history from the foundation of the order by a little band of actors in the city of New York to its present prominence as one of the strong fraternal organizations of the country, and dwelt upon its strong points of brotherly love and charity.

Following the address by Mr. Drew, there was a violin solo, "Melodie," by Tschalkowsky, by A. E. Donnelly, with piano accompaniment by Miss Ella L. Williams.

Another selection by the band and then Governor Park Trammell was introduced by W. M. Hankins, exalted ruler of Daytona lodge of Elks, and delivered an eloquent eulogy of the departed members of the local lodge and Elks in general who had passed to the great beyond. The governor, who is a fluent and graceful speaker, dwelt on the virtues of the departed brothers and on the fundamental principle of the order that living or dead an Elk is never forgotten, quoting the Elk sentiment, "The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands, their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

Following the address by the governor, came the closing ceremonies of the lodge, a selection by the New Daytona Theater orchestra and the singing of "The Vacant Chair," by a quartet composed of W. J. McDonald, Dr. Addison O'Neil, P. W. Hart and F. M. Terrell. Rev. S. D. Gammell delivered the benediction and the Crystal orchestra played an exit march.

The handsome bronze memorial tablet, presented to the Elks' lodge by Commodore C. G. Burgoynes, arrived Saturday and was given a prominent position in the front of the stage at the memorial services which were the most complete and interesting ever held by the lodge in this city.

Captains of Industry.

This title, while not new, was brought into general use by a luncheon in New York arranged in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia when he visited the United States in 1902. It was attended by men who by their genius, means or otherwise, were responsible, in whole or in part, for the creation and development of important industries in the United States. The late John Pierpont Morgan, the prominent financier, presided at the luncheon, and the men who attended it were designated "Captains of Industry."

Friend of the Farmer.

Dr. Marion Dorset, bi-chemist of the federal bureau of animal industry, is the scientist who first isolated the germ responsible for that farm scourge cholera in the hog. That accomplished, he perfected a serum to combat it, protected his processes by patents and then turned them over to the public, to be used without charge.

For Old Gilding.

Take some cotton and form it into a hard tuft as large as a nut and then dip it in strong liquid ammonia and apply it carefully to old gilding. This restores it pretty well if the gold is not worn off.

MAKE PINCUSHIONS.

They Are Excellent Christmas Gifts For Either Men or Women.

"Pin, pin—who's got the pin?" How often the cry goes up in the household! There should be many cushions for the elusive but necessary little household and toilet article, and here is an illustration of something which would make a very acceptable Christmas gift.

This square pincushion was made of gayly colored silks and velvets and could be made of the odds and ends found in the scrap bag, for, of course, every one has a scrap bag. From this scrap bag many useful and beautiful gifts may be fashioned. The box cushion finished with a smashing bow of ribbon and thickly studded with pins would be a gift which would be acceptable to any household.

For the foundation of the pincushion a cardboard box, in any of the various sizes in which such boxes come now, is used. Of course it need not necessarily be a cube in shape, but that shape is handled most easily.

THE FINISHING TOUCH.

Much Depends on Way in Which the Christmas Gift Is Done Up.

A Christmas gift is not really finished until it is wrapped for really the festive wrapping means much to the success of the gift. The first impression comes from the wrapping, and the first impression goes a long way.

The shops are full of attractive boxes decorated with Santa Clauses, holly, mistletoe, Christmas bells and other emblems of the happy season. These can be used to hold Christmas gifts of almost any kind, from handkerchiefs to umbrellas. Then there are the dainty little cards, inscribed with fitting sentiments and embellished with fitting emblems, that go in the box to bear the name of the sender and of the receiver. Next come layers of tissue paper, tied daintily with ribbon—holly covered, red and green striped, or tinsel ribbon. Instead of the tissue paper heavier paper decorated with holly can be used. It is a pretty custom to tuck a sprig of holly or mistletoe somewhere under the ribbon that wraps the package or to tie it to the ends of the ribbon. The little Christmas seals can be used to help hold the paper in place or to keep the ribbon from slipping.

After all the wrapping described there remains nothing but a safe outside box or paper, if the package is to go through the mail or express service. This outside wrapping must be clearly marked with your own name and the name of the person to whom the gift is sent. And it must be tightly tied with string not ribbon. But it, too, can carry a bit of Christmas spirit with it, for it can be thickly pasted with Christmas seals of various sorts, and it can bear on its face one of the little posters that warn the recipient not to open until Christmas.

A Gift For a "Mere Man."

Traveling men find that their cuffs and collars have an elusive way of losing themselves. This case, with the slipper case attached, would be a very acceptable gift to the average traveler.

CUFFS, COLLAR AND SLIPPER CASE.

As pictured here, it was made of French cretonne in shades of buff and brown. While ornamental, these cases and similar gifts may be put to very practical use and are constant reminders of the donors.

ALLANDALE.

ALLANDALE, Dec. 8.—Don Morris and wife drove their car down on Sunday and joined the Christians and the party went on to New Smyrna where the children of both parties were christened by the Rev. Mr. Baker of the Episcopal church, the Christians standing sponsor for John Donald Cameron Morris and the Morris for Allan Howes Christaincy.

The Allandale company has presented C. Christaincy with a new Hupmobile, which arrived last Saturday.

Platt R. Spencer, of the Spencerian system of penmanship, paid a visit to Rusk's one day last week, driving over from Holly Hill where he is stopping for the present. The gentleman is eighty years old but quite active, as he drove over alone. He was very much pleased with what he saw of Allandale and talks strongly of locating here.

A party from Ohio have bought the lot north of the Hobbs bungalow and will build a buff brick bungalow this winter. This place will make the fourth attractive bungalow on the Riverside at Kirby Place.

Plans have been finished for alterations on the Baker bungalow that will add greatly to the beauty of the place and give more room. A garage will also be built at the rear of the lot.

At Ye Inn a two and one-half horse power gas engine and pump has been installed that will furnish water for the Inn and cottages in the vicinity.

The Five Hundred club meets with Mrs. J. H. C. Howes this week.

Mrs. C. F. Taylor and daughter, with Miss Flora Morrison, spent Sunday at the Inn.

All the Difference.

The little thefts and petty mischiefs are interrupted by the laws, yet if a mischief becomes public and great, acted by princes and effected by armies, and robberies be done by whole fleets, it is virtue, it is glory!—Jeremy Taylor.

ANOTHER GAS MAN OVERCOME MONDAY

JACK GOLDEN NARROWLY ESCAPED ASPHYXIA WHILE WORKING IN THE OPEN AIR AT DAYTONA BEACH.

(From The Daytona Gazette-News)

Jack Golden, a pipe fitter in the employ of the Daytona Public Service company, was overcome by gas while working in a trench on Seabreeze avenue, Daytona Beach, Monday afternoon. Golden had undertaken to tap a main, and when the opening was made the fumes caused him to reel and fall, despite the fact that he was in the open air. "Doctor" French was hurriedly summoned to bring the city's pulmoner. After nearly a half hour's work on the almost dead man, he was restored to consciousness and semi-normal physical condition. The accident occurred in front of V. C. Grant's plumbing establishment.

Golden has been with the Public Service company for several months, and is an experienced gas fitter.

Good Wood for Matches.

Aspen wood is used almost exclusively in making matches in Sweden, as it is easily cut and porous enough to be readily impregnated with sulphur or paraffin.

Policeman's Badge of Authority.

In equipment the policeman varies from a walking arsenal, such as the Jericho policeman, to the clubless patrolman of one or two American cities. The club, however, is recognized as the policeman's badge of authority. In Darjeeling the policeman carries a reed pole about six feet long. In Seville the night police are armed with long spears, such as the knights of old used.

HAWKS PARK

Sunday night the old folks and young folks gathered at the Bay View house and all joined in a singing bee.

Alex McLane, who has been here for some time taking care of his father's home and grove, left Tuesday for New York.

Alexander McLane is now shipping some of his grapefruit to the northern markets.

The Hawks home in the Chadwick-
Fernald tract is nearly completed.
This makes the second house to be built on this tract this winter.

Our expert fisherman, Gilbert Ball-entyne, has made two trips down the river this week after mullet, but says they are not bunting enough to suit him, although he brings back a

Archie Futch, who left here to spend a few days in Daytona, is with us once more.

W. E. Swope of New Smyrna is berries, but report them quite scarce.

In the Nursery.
The temperature of the nursery should be about 65 degrees F. It is wise to have a thermometer in the room. This precaution is well worth taking, for a not infrequent cause of dyspepsia in the very young is the overheating of the nursery. The night temperature should be about 62 degrees F. As the child grows older it is not necessary to keep the temperature of the room above 58 degrees F.
The windows should always be well opened when the child is absent from the nursery and each evening before the child is put to bed. This practice should be followed for a few minutes.
To secure adequate ventilation, if there be an open fireplace, is not difficult, either by having the window opened very slightly at the top or by means of the door. It is an excellent idea where practicable to have an adjustable ventilator in the window itself. Currents of air are to be avoided.

They Ate a Few Cherries.
Cherries were known in England
2,000 years ago, but their systematic cultivation dates only from the beginning of the sixteenth century.
From the first Kent was the great cherry county, and it was once a favorite amusement in the Kentish orchards to try who could eat the largest quantity of the fruit at a sitting. Busino, Venetian ambassador at the Court of James I, witnessed one of these contests when the winner was a young woman who disposed of 20 pounds of cherries, beating her nearest rival by only two and one-half pounds.

That Lost Balance.
A young lady while out boat riding one day in a park, attempted to change seats, and fell overboard.
When she was brought up gasping and struggling, the usual crowd gathered around and asked how it happened.
"Oh, I just lost my balance," she began, when a little Jewish boy, who had been listening open-mouthed, said: "Youse loose your balance, lad,
I will find it for youse."

Good Joke on Sothorn.

Mr. Samuel Sothorn, the English actor, says the worst moment of his stage career was passed in a state of mental paralysis owing to a trick played on him by another actor. This actor, who had a passion for practical joking, and Mr. Sothorn were appearing in the same play. It was a sentimental comedy in which Mr. Sothorn had to make a long and effective speech with the stage all to himself. The practical joker got an alarm clock, timed the alarm very carefully, and set it upon a sideboard upon the stage. "At the very moment I opened my mouth to declaim," Mr. Sothorn says, "it went off. I stood before the footlights literally gaping, whilst the blatant bell rang and thrummed and clattered through an eternity. It was a nightmare! I wanted to run, and could not; I wanted to speak, and could not. Suddenly from the gallery a piercing voice cried out: 'Say, boss, I guess your line's engaged!'"

Art of Sailing.

Shifting canvas so as to utilize the blow of the wind for driving ships upon the water is one of the very earliest of the arts through which man has continued to utilize the forces of nature. When steam power came into use the sailing craft was at the very highest stage of its development. The stately four-master, spreading a score of sheets to the wind, was queen of the waters a century ago. With the multiplication of steam-driven ships and, within the last decade or so, the amazing substitution of the internal combustion gasoline engines for sails upon vessels of the small-tonnage class raises the query as to whether the sailor's craftsmanship is not soon to be numbered among the lost arts. It begins to look as though the sailing ship and the horse might go out together.

Real Philanthropist.

"And so," said the man who lives in a flat to his friend who is a commuter, "your next door neighbor, you say, is a real philanthropist." "You bet he is," said the commuter, with enthusiasm; "why, he bought $10 worth of flower seeds for my chickens last spring."—Ladies' Home Journal.

In a Light Comedy Role.

Two washerwomen were one day telling of the progress made by their various lads in their chosen work. "Tell me, Mrs. Casey," asked Mrs. Clancy, "what's your son, John, doing now?" "John's on the stage—he's a light comedian," answered Mrs. Casey. "Ye don't tell me!" exclaimed Mrs. Clancy, "an' would ye mind tellin' me what a 'light comedian' is?" "Well," explained Mrs. Casey, "in me son's case it's this: He plays a silent part behind a black curtain with his mouth to a hole, and in front is a candle, and when Alkali Ike shoots at the candle, John blows it out."—Saturday Journal.

Hilarious Announcement.

Mrs. Noowed—"Oh, John, our cook is going to leave us in the morning!" Mr. Noowed—"What makes you think so?" "Why, she's been sitting on the kitchen floor with a bottle in her hand, singing. And when I asked her what was the matter, she threw the bottle at me and said, 'We won't go home until morning.'"—Exchange.

A Primal False Step.

"Why don't you propose to that girl?" You like her and I'm sure she would have you. "All true, but there is an insuperable obstacle between us." "All family or religious obstacles can be overcome." "Nothing like that. I got a little too gay when I first met her and told her I was getting fifty a week, whereas I am only getting twenty-five."

Chivalry Has Trials.

Chivalry exacts a certain indulgence of feminine whims from the male sex, but there is a limit, according to a Kansas City man who, after getting a divorce from his wife, asked the court to restore her maiden name. He says his wife twice attempted suicide, flirted with a wife-murderer in jail and now is playing baseball with a "bloomer girls" team in Oklahoma. It is not to be wondered at that the judge regretted his inability to comply with the request.—Louisville Times.

The New Agriculture.

The term "new agriculture" applied to the farming methods that have been made possible within the past twenty years or so by the advance of science. "Dry farming," the "inoculation" of soils, the amazing results of irrigation and of experimentation at the state and government agricultural stations, "intensive" farming, deep plowing, seed selection, crop rotation and the application of nitrogenous elements have completely revolutionized the farmers' art, giving them returns that were not dreamed of a few decades ago.

Good Sense.

To Lady Cardigan is attributed the following somewhat pert comment when a very ignorant person was complimented on his good sense in being present: "I don't wonder," she said, "at his possessing a large stock of good sense. He never spends any."

Making Mistakes.

The wisest man is likely to make a mistake, but he isn't the wisest man if he makes another like it.

Diversified Plantings Are Safe Plantings

Never before was the wisdom of diversification in both farming and fruit growing so apparent as now. The effect of the one crop policy is so acute. Diversification should be practiced no matter what are the general conditions of the country. It will protect you from general fluctuations in planting. It properly arranged, provides the greatest profits and an all the year-round income.

Figs and Assorted Fruits Insure Permanent Profitable Diversification

Plant first for home consumption, second, to supply local markets, and third, for export. All shipping to distant markets. Plant in sufficient quantity for both local and distant markets. Figs are a fruit of a single and very profitable. If you don't know how, Department of Agriculture sends you agents will teach you. Figs are a fruit of a single and very profitable. Home-Made Ointment.

The following is a recipe for a simple home-made ointment, which is excellent for applying to cuts and bruises: One teaspoonful each of olive oil, turpentine, spirits of camphor and coal oil. Of course, any amount desired may be made, but the proportion must be as given here.

One Day.

One day, with life and heart, is more than enough to find a world.—James Russell Lowell.

Thought on Patriotism.

It is to be feared that the patriotism of this day has but little regard for such common things as individual economy and providence, although it is by the practice of such virtues only that the genuine independence of the industrial classes is to be secured.—Samuel Smiles.

Making for Popularity.

In a small town a popular woman is one who is willing to loan her palm to the neighbor who is giving a party.

citizens. Success has been stamped all over the local branch of the citrus exchange from the very first and the way the affairs of the association have moved along has been a bitter dose to the dyed in the wool knockers of the exchange.

When I was a boy I used to hear frequent applications of the old saying that the shoemaker's children all ways wear the most ragged shoes, and it's no insinuation to say I think it was a good joke that C. G. Herrick was late to church last Sunday morning because his clock was slow. But along with the "joke" comes the thought that any man who makes it his business to keep watches and clocks in perfect running order and keeping good time and is honest enough to acknowledge that a slow clock made him late to church, can be trusted with anything from a high priced watch to a family secret.

By the way, I wonder what has become of the One Circle club. I understand that came about as near being a really harmonious organization as any this town has ever had, and if there is any chance to keep up a harmonious organization in this town I'm for helping to push it along. For one, I'd like to see that One Circle bunch get started again, for they tell me they used to have some good times at the meetings and that the welfare of the city didn't suffer any because of the discussions of live topics. However, I would like to see the scope of the organization enlarged to take in more members, and am frank to say I'd like to be a member myself. What's the answer?
BEGIN YOUR BUYING BEFORE THE RUSH
Do your Christmas shopping early and send your Christmas packages early is the slogan this year. Not only are the merchants in favor of the shop early idea but the post-office carriers are anxious to get the packages early in order to lessen the strain incumbent to the Christmas rush.
Postmaster Dohn has requested the public to not only shop early but ship early and his idea is to have the parcel post packages made ready now and marked "Not to be opened until Christmas," and in this way the donors and recipients can have the packages sent and received on time and all will be peace and happiness Christmas day.
This idea can and should be carried out by the shopping public and it is just as easy to purchase or make presents and send them next week as to wait until the week of Christmas. The merchants now have their Christmas stocks on display, and you can easily determine from the advertisements in the News just where to purchase your Christmas gifts.

CITRUS EXCHANGE ORDERS PACKING HOUSES TO CLOSE
Because of the demoralized condition of the northern markets and the poor condition of much of the fruit being shipped by independent packers at this time, orders have been received to cease operations at the local exchange packing house until better conditions prevail. The citrus fruit market has been in poor condition almost since the season opened because of the efforts to rush immature and damaged fruit to the north. The Florida Citrus Exchange has made strong efforts to induce the growers to hold back their fruit for better conditions and prices and into shipping has been done by the exchange, except on orders. The local packing house closed down Tuesday night.

A SCRAP OF PAPER

A Story For Thanksgiving.

By RUTH GRAHAM

Edward Olcott was convalescent, and the morning was a marvel of sunshine. There is a delicious feeling about first convalescence that I fancy is explainable from the contrast between suffering and the relief from suffering. It seemed to Olcott that he was never so well in his life, and yet it would have been well nigh impossible for him to get out of the invalid chair in which he had been wheeled to the glass in closed porch of the hospital.

He had not been there long before an attendant dropped a newspaper in his lap. Unfolding it, he noticed some words written in pencil in a woman's hand on the margin. They read:

Dear Patient—I am very sorry for you. I hope you will get comfort from this paper, which I intend to put in the box at the terminal of the railroad for papers to go to the hospital. I pity you especially being confined on account of illness when Thanksgiving is coming on. On next Thanksgiving day I trust you will be in condition to enjoy a fine Thanksgiving dinner.

This communication to an unknown dear patient was signed with two initials, E. A. The newspaper was a weekly issued at a place called Edgewater, some twenty miles from the city.

"That little note," said Olcott to himself, "was written by a girl. No one else would have signed her initials. The place in which she lives is made up of residences of well to do people. I question if in all there are 500 houses. I shall have no difficulty in discovering who E. A. is, and I propose to dine with her next Thanksgiving. I would do so this year but for the fact that there isn't time and I couldn't eat a Thanksgiving dinner."

Olcott was a young man or means. The reason why he was at a hospital instead of his own home was twofold—first, he was a bachelor, without a near relative, and second, he had been recommended by his physician to go to a hospital as the most convenient place in which to be ill. Possibly in his convalescent state he was especially impressionable. Be that as it may, he read the paper that had been given him, conjuring up visions of the person who wrote the message on the margin. When he had finished the paper's perusal he tore off the message for preservation and future use.

Olcott was at an age when an appreciation for the pleasures of social life begins to love its edge. When he was twenty he fancied that he was courted because of his attractiveness. Now that he was twenty-seven he had come to understand that he was courted principally for what his income represented. He had not lived at home since the death of his mother, when he was nineteen. His illness, during which he had been under the care of paid nurses, had made him sensible of what might be the tender solicitude of one who loved him. Sundry young ladies he had met in society had endeavored to make it appear to him that they appreciated him for himself, but he believed that any other man who could give them a home would do as well.

For these reasons he was attracted to this person who had a heart to take in an unknown person in a hospital from whom there was scarcely a possibility that she could derive any benefit.

She might possibly be old and homely, but he did not believe she was. At any rate, as soon as he was discharged from the hospital he proposed to hunt her up—that is, if she lived in Edgewater. If not, there was not much hope of finding her.

When the next Thanksgiving season came round Olcott had made the acquaintance of Miss Edith Arnold of Edgewater and had proved by securing a specimen of her handwriting that she was the person who had contributed the newspaper that he had read as a convalescent. There had been no great difficulty in this. All he had to do was to go to Edgewater, join a club there, consisting of young men and women, make the acquaintance of the residents and look out for a girl whose initials were E. A.

Miss Arnold was, as he had supposed very young. She was barely eighteen. Olcott paid her a great deal of attention, at which she was naturally flattered. He discovered that her heart was as tender for the sick as he had supposed, and it was not long before he had won that heart for himself.

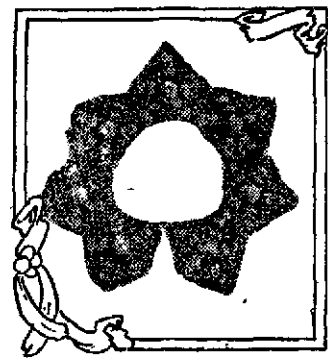

All this while he had the pencil message that he had torn from the newspaper in his portmanteau. But he said nothing about it to Miss Arnold, who supposed that their meeting had occurred by chance. Olcott had resolved when in the hospital that he would eat his next Thanksgiving dinner with her, and he was working up to that point. This, too, was very easy, for a few weeks before Thanksgiving he asked her to be his wife, and she accepted his proposition. Under the circumstances it was quite in order that he should be invited to take his Thanksgiving dinner at the Arnolds'. Toward its close he took from his portmanteau the scrap he had torn from the newspaper and passed it around the table. It was easily recognized as Edith's work. Then Olcott said:

"When ill in a hospital I tore this message of sympathy from a newspaper that fell into my hands. I vowed that I would eat my next Thanksgiving dinner with the writer, and I have kept my resolve."

HANDMADE ARTICLES ARE USEFUL GIFTS

Women Can Make Pretty Things
With the Crochet Hook.

WITH a spool of cotton or linen, a crochet hook, some time and perseverance, many beautiful Christmas gifts can be made by the woman who has a desire to give and very little money to gratify her desire. The lace collar illustrated here, while it may appear elaborate, is, in fact, quite within the accomplishment of the fairly skilled worker with the crochet hook. Buy a pattern at any fancy workshop. With this will come directions for crocheting. This is a standard pattern of rose crochet, and all shops keep it. Any other pattern which would be simpler to execute would be just as acceptable to the recipient of the gift.

This is only a Christmas suggestion should you be in despair, as so many women are at holiday time, what to give one's best friend, who simply must be remembered.

Or if a bag be preferred to a collar here are two to select from, and if the girl or woman who receives one is not pleased she will be a very difficult person, indeed.

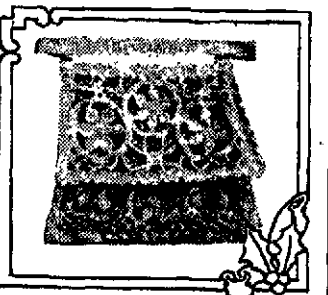

The bag in this illustration is of the beautiful grape pattern, not difficult to execute, but very showy with its leaves in solid crochet and its fruit, little round crochet balls. Many could use it through the winter in a variety of ways—as a theater bag, a bridge bag, for handkerchief, powder puff, the inevitable vanity mirror or as a pretty case for her fancy work, for the bit of embroidery which must not be soiled in the making.

Then when summer comes, if the bag has survived the vicissitudes of the winter months, it can be carried with dainty summer dresses. So do not fear that your gift of a bag will not be found useful and acceptable. The fertile brain of the woman who receives it will devise many uses for it.

There is still another bag which would make a pretty case for handkerchiefs. Lined with a dainty shade of taffeta and with a sachet bag tucked away inside, scented with the recipient's favorite scent, this would be an ideal gift. And used as a handkerchief case in the intimacy of your friend's boudoir it would pleasantly serve to remind her of the donor many times a day.

Bootees For Baby.

A pair of wee bootees will be welcomed. They may be made of any soft cloth, kid or chamola, bound with baby ribbon and finished with bows of ribbon, with ribbon ties at the ankle. The soles are sewed to the uppers when wrong side out, and then the shoe is turned.

When Everybody Eats Florida Citrus Fruits the Demand will Exceed the Supply

Citrus fruits are becoming necessities instead of luxuries. The people of the United States are learning their many merits and uses. Where formerly they were regarded solely as breakfast fruits, now they are eaten at other meals and used freely in cookery and confections. All this means a great deal for Florida, which grows the finest citrus fruits of the world. The production of her superior oranges and grapefruit can hardly keep pace with the inevitable increase in demand due to the above causes.

Buckeye Nurseries Catalog— A Citrus Handbook

All the problems that arise in the culture of oranges and grapefruit are fully covered in this book. It tells how to select a location for the grove and describes the operations necessary to bring trees into profitable bearing. Everything is based on practical experience—there are no theories in the advice given. No matter what citrus fruits you are growing or intend to plant, this book will be of service to you. It has been written to help alike the man with the grove and the man who expects to have one. Every person interested in the citrus industry of Florida is welcome to a copy of this book, printed at great expense. Write today for one—edition is limited.

NEGRO UNDER DEATH SENTENCE ATTEMPTS TO MURDER ANOTHER

BEN HOLDEN STABS NEGRO IN JAIL REPEATEDLY WITH A
RUSTY FORK—CONDITION SERIOUS.

Already under sentence of death for the murder of Morton Haines, Ben Holden attempted to murder another negro named Will B. Rosburr in the county jail at Deland Monday afternoon. It seems that the fact that several of the negro prisoners had in some way gotten possession of pocket knives came to the knowledge of Sheriff Smith, and that official made a search of all the prisoners. He was rewarded by finding a wicked knife, which was confiscated. Holden was one of the six negroes that had one.

Holden accused Rosburr of tipping the sheriff off, and with a rusty fork stabbed Rosburr repeatedly in the back and shoulders, inflicting wounds that may prove fatal.

Implied Rebuke.

A few days ago a little friend of ours, three years old, stopped for his daily visit, but as we had other company we did not pay much attention to her chatter until she said that she would go home. I asked her to come over again, and she answered doubtfully, "Well, if you'd like to have me I'll stay now."—Chicago Tribune

BERLIN IN WARTIMES

City Aflame With Enthusiasm When War Is Declared.

Emperor Received Plaudits of People With a Stern and Inscrutable Face—Ordinary Life of Metropolis Not Normal.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.
London.—Dr. H. J. Poutsma, secretary of the Railway Men's union of South Africa, has just arrived in London from Berlin and tells an interesting story of conditions there since the war began.

Doctor Poutsma is one of the nine labor leaders who were deported from South Africa several months ago in connection with the general strike there. He was in Berlin for six weeks after the outbreak of war and had a rather exciting time making his way slowly to England. He said:

"I left Berlin ten days ago, and have just arrived in England. My stay in the German capital will be unforgettable, so crowded has it been with vivid impressions and great events.

"At the risk of my life I left Berlin with my wife and children on that date with a Dutch passport I had been lucky enough to obtain. With the help of my knowledge of the Dutch language and through the kindness of a foreign ambassador, I managed to slip over the border into Holland.

"When it became known that Germany had declared war, the whole of Berlin was aflame with an enormous enthusiasm. The streets were dense with marching throngs singing the patriotic songs of the Fatherland, and making their way to the kaiser's palace. It looked as if the whole city had gone mad.

"There was at that time a confident belief that Great Britain would remain neutral. Just after Great Britain had entered the conflict I was told that no British subject would be allowed to leave the country, and I had to report myself every day to the police. I had in my possession an English passport which I had taken out only two hours before England sent her ultimatum to Germany.

"During my enforced stay in the capital I saw the entrance of the kaiser, the kaiserin and the crown prince with his wife and the princes from Potsdam. It was a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. The picture of the emperor is a vivid memory. He did not bow once in acknowledgment of the shouts of the crowd. The crown prince and his wife nodded and smiled continually, but the emperor sat with one hand at his golden helmet, stern and inscrutable, a figure of destiny. There was not during the whole time the faintest flicker of a smile.

"Scenes very different from these occurred on the arrival of the refugees from eastern Prussia in consequence of the Russian advance. They came in thousands, rich and poor alike, packed in freight cars, with all their belongings in small handbags or bundles. The women and children were crying. Their arrival created a very bad impression in Berlin, and gave rise to alarming speculations that the Russians would be in Berlin before they were expected.

"Meanwhile the ordinary life of the city was not quite normal, although the authorities did their best to keep it so. Food prices were regulated by the government as one step to keep off panic. From my house I could see Zeppelins and aeroplanes continually circling overhead. Nearly all the tram conductors had gone to the war and the trams were equipped with women conductors, chiefly wives of the conscript tram-men.

"It must be said that the organization and equipment of the German army is remarkable and the mobilization went like clockwork. There is a feeling of cocksureness about victory in Berlin. The people feel that Belgium was stupid not to allow Germany to march through, and that the severe punishment inflicted is quite just."

WAR WOUNDS HEAL RAPIDLY

Antiseptic Treatment and the Velocity of Modern Bullets Aid Recovery.

London.—The rapidity with which the wounds of soldiers are healed, and the practical absence of blood-poisoning cases, has been a surprise in view of the "deadly effectiveness" of the modern army weapons.

"The antiseptic treatment of wounds almost immediately after their infliction has a great deal to do with the fact that cures are effected in such a short time as has been demonstrated in the London hospitals," said one of the physicians in attendance upon the wounded.

"While surgery has made wonderful strides in the last decade, the results might have been different were it not that the antiseptic preventive measures have been applied.

"Another important reason lies in the fact that the bullet fired from a modern rifle travels with such velocity as to obviate the danger of a ragged wound."

German Spy Shot Down.
Paris.—A dispatch from Troyes, France, to the Havas agency states that an announcement comes from Romilly-sur-Seine, a town 23 miles northwest of Troyes, that the French brought down a German aeroplane while it was flying over that city.

FIGHT ALONG CANAL

Britisher Tells of Birthday Present From Kaiser.

English Soldier, Although Wounded, Keeps Up Lively Fusillade Upon Ranks of Approaching Germans—Another Version of Sea Fight.

London.—Private G. A. Turner, now lying wounded in the London hospital, sends the following account home of one day's fighting in France.

"I am still living, though a bit knocked about. I got a birthday present from the kaiser. On Sunday, 23d, we had rifle inspection at 11 a. m., and were ordered to fall in for bathing parade at 11:30. While we were waiting for another company to return from the river the Germans commenced to shell the town. We fell in about 1 p. m., an hour and a half afterwards, to go to the scene of the attack. Shells were bursting in the streets as we went. We crossed a bridge over the canal under artillery fire, and stood doing nothing behind a mill on the bank for some time.

"Then some one cried out that the Germans were advancing along the canal bank, and our company was ordered to go along. Then the Germans opened fire with their guns at about five hundred yards with shrapnel, and the scene that followed beggars description. Several of us were laid full length behind a wooden fence about half an inch thick. The German shells burst about three yards in front of it. It was blown to splinters in about ten minutes. None of us expected to get out alive.

"They kept us there about an hour before they gave us the word to retire. I had just turned round to go back when I stopped one. It hits you with an awful thump, and I thought it had caught me at the bottom of the spine, as it numbed my legs for about half an hour.

"When I found I could not walk, I gave it up, just after I got my first view of the Germans. They were coming out of a wood about four hundred yards away, all in a heap together, so I thought as I was done for I would get a bit of my own back, and so I started pumping a bit of lead into them.

"I stuck there for about three-quarters of an hour, and fired all my own ammunition and a lot belonging to two more wounded men who were close to me—about three hundred rounds altogether, and as it was such a good target, I guess I accounted for a good lot of them.

"Then I suddenly discovered I could walk, and so I set off to get back. I had to walk about one hundred and fifty yards in the open, with shrapnel bursting around me all the way.

"A man who was at Paardeburg and Magersfontein in South Africa said they were nothing to what we got that Sunday. Out of 240 men of my company only about twenty were uninjured."

Mrs. D. L. Wilson of Hunslet sends a letter received from her husband, a seaman of the Bacchante. He says: "You will have read of our victory in the North sea. It was fine. Our ship brought the dead and wounded and the prisoners back. A grim job it was, too. I only wish the whole German fleet would come out. We may get a chance of coming home soon. Their firing is rotten, while our men behind the guns are perfect. They get a hit every time.

"The boudiers won't come out. That was the reason our ships had to try to drive them out. You see the place is all mined, and if a ship runs into one of these mines it means destruction.

"The commander of the Liberty, a torpedo-boat destroyer, asked his ship's company if they would volunteer to go up Kiel harbor with him, and every man said 'Yes,' although it looked certain death. Up they went and got under the forts of Helgoland and let rip at the German cruisers in the harbor. One of the wounded sailors of the Liberty told me that the shells fired at them were enough to sink a fleet.

"Our ship had only one torpedo and one round of ammunition left. So they turned around and came out, when a shrapnel shell struck the Liberty's mast, killing the gallant commander and three others. The coxswain, although wounded, brought the ship safely to our fleet that was waiting outside. We pray to God that we may come off victorious, and I am confident we shall, as every man jack in the fleet has the heart of a lion."

More Gettysburg Dead.

Gettysburg, Pa.—While George Woodward was hunting for bullets in the field of the Almshouse farm near Barlow's knoll he saw what he thought was human bones and began scratching with his umbrella, unearthing a human skull. He then secured a shovel and dug up the bones of three men. Together with the bones were found two five dollar gold coins of the dates of 1833 and 1844, two portions of shoes and nine brass buttons of the coat of arms of New York state, a number of iron trouser buttons and several musket caps.

Must Have Bath and Tea.

Paris.—No matter how great the danger, the British soldiers will not be kept from their bath or their tea. Between two recent attacks on a town the British officers took tea and the men had a "tub" in the river.

As to Age of Gunpowder. Comparison of the terms used by Sir Francis Bacon to describe the effects of explosive powder in three different places shows that he was writing of the same powder. Now his letter on the "Secret Works of Nature" would appear to have been written to William of Auvergne, archbishop of Paris, who died in 1248 or 1249. It seems, then, that the explosive properties of black powder were known in France and England before the middle of the thirteenth century.

Origin of Knitting. Knitting is a Scotch invention of the fifteenth century, and Scotch knitted stockings soon found their way to France. A guild of stocking knitters, too, was soon formed, with St. Flacore as their patron saint. Hand knitting was not long left without machinery as a rival, for it was as long ago as 1589 that William Lee invented the knitting frame.

Men Meant for Leaders. Some things are better as private property. Others ought to be shared. In daily life, Robert Louis Stevenson's rule of distribution is a good one: "Keep your fears to yourself, but share your courage with others." Those who follow this rule always become leaders in the end by sheer force of character growth.

Studebaker

"As you think about Automobiles, remember two things:

"1. Studebaker cars are built in the largest and best factories in the industry.
"2. The man who deals with Studebaker makes no mistake.

"These two axioms sum up all the automobile wisdom any man need know. Remember them today, next fall, next year—and whenever the automobile question comes to your mind"

PATENT MEDICINES
STATE BOARD OF HEALTH BULLETIN

Dope and death.

That's the combination that goes with the use of patent medicines. No reputable physician would direct the use of a prescription of which he didn't know the exact contents and their exact proportions. Each ingredient has its precise duty to perform in the relief of the patient, and the prescription is prepared to meet the conditions revealed by the professional diagnosis.

Yet, the layman, ignorant of the demands of his own physical condition, unskilled even in the rudiments of a scientific diagnosis, unconsciously exercising a sublime faith in an allwise Providence to overrule any mistake of his own weak human judgment, deliberately does himself with some concoction that may be a poison or an elixir—he knows no difference, and he is willing to take the chance, with slow death as the option.

The market is flooded with bottles, beautifully labelled and brilliantly attractive. If one may trust the label and the wrapper, the particular concoction will work a sure and guaranteed cure for every physical trouble from corns to consumption. Usually there is an exhaustive outline of symptoms of various diseases, which the gullible reader may recognize as particularly his own, and from the large assortment he may select any one or more and proceed to a "home treatment" entirely independent of the doctors. He is reminded, however, that several bottles of the medicine may be required to work a "complete cure."

And so the work of self-destruction and death goes on at a frightfully increasing rate.

Now what are the facts?

In the majority of cases the so-called patent medicines are made up of ingredients that cost from three to ten cents for a bottle that retails for a dollar. Some profit. And in a majority of cases—almost universally—the most active contained agent is hashesh, opium or alcohol, all of them narcotics, all of them stupefying or perverting brain activity and weakening brain power, and all of them creating the desire for more, always more.

Certain of the so-called proprietary medicines are not to be classed with patent medicines. These are frequently the prescriptions of eminent physicians who authorize their preparation on a commercial scale by reputable chemists, whose responsibility guarantees that the printed formula has been faithfully followed, and the formula is usually printed on the label.

But the use of even proprietary medicines is dangerous excepting on the prescription of the doctor, and then only as he prescribes. Because a teaspoonful in water once in three hours will be beneficial gives no reason to suspect that a tablespoonful once an hour will hasten relief.

Florida has had a recent emphatic illustration of the harmfulness of the use of these narcotics. The business manager of one of the important newspapers of the state, was killed by a man who, it was alleged in his defense, had been dosing himself with an alleged "headache powder." It contained a considerable percentage of hashesh and he had been made insane, had lost control of all will power and of the ability to control his own actions. The result was the unnecessary, cruel death of an able man in the prime of a useful life.

There is but one safe way—never swallow or administer a medicine, patent, proprietary or any other kind except at the direction of a reputable physician. And don't take the responsibility of dosing yourself with a prescription that he ordered a year ago. Your case may have changed since then. It may not fit now.

Be sane if you would stay sane.

DECISION OF THE STATE SUPREME COURT
ON APPEAL IN MANDAMUS AGAINST TREASURER

Following is a copy of the decision handed down by the state supreme court on the appeal from the decision of the circuit court in the case of the mandamus of the State bank against the city treasurer:

In the supreme court of Florida, June term, A. D. 1914.

D. C. Silvers, city treasurer, plaintiff in error, vs. State ex rel State Bank of New Smyrna, defendant in error.

An alternative writ of mandamus was issued from the circuit court of Volusia county alleging that the relator bank duly presented twenty city warrants to the respondent city treasurer for payment; that the said D. C. Silvers at the time of such presentation did have in his possession, custody or control funds of the said city of New Smyrna sufficient to pay all, or at least a large part of said warrants, yet wholly neglected or refused to pay said warrants, or any of them. The alternative writ commanded the city treasurer to pay the twenty warrants, or to show cause for not doing so. A demurrer to the alternative writ was interposed, one ground being that it is not alleged "that the respondent has the ability to perform the acts" commanded. The demurrer was overruled, an answer or return was made, and testimony taken. A peremptory writ of mandamus was issued, and the respondent took writ of error.

It does not appear by the alternative writ that the respondent had funds to make the payments when the writ was issued, and the return supported by the evidence shows that the respondent did not have funds to pay the twenty warrants. There was consequently error in issuing the alternative writ and in awarding the peremptory writ of mandamus. The relator must show the respondent's duty and ability to comply with the mandatory writ as was done in Ray vs. Wilson, 29 Fla. 342, 10 South. Rep. 613, 14 L. R. A. 773. See county commissioners of Duval county vs. city of Jacksonville, 36 Fla. 196, 18 South. Rep. 339, 29 L. R. A. 416.

The judgment awarding the peremptory writ is reversed.

ALLEGED AGREEMENT
STOPS FENCE REMOVAL

That there was an agreement of some kind regarding a crossing over the F. E. C. railroad tracks at Julia street made between the city council and the officials of the road several years ago, when Dixie street was opened, is the statement made by several members of the council, but all efforts to find any record of such agreement has so far been unsuccessful.

The council recently authorized the mayor to remove the fence built by the railroad across Julia street, but action has been delayed by the mayor pending the efforts to find some trace of the reported agreement. The matter was taken up with the railroad officials through the city attorneys, but up to this time no move has been made to remove the fence, and further efforts to get some satisfaction out of the railroad officials will be made. Unless a copy of this alleged agreement can be produced the mayor will remove the fence.

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES TREE
MACHINE IS BADLY DAMAGED

Reports from Daytona yesterday were that an automobile owned and driven by J. H. Reddick of this city was badly damaged when it ran into a tree on South Ridgewood avenue Wednesday night. None of the occupants of the car was seriously injured, but the car is said to have received a bent axle, damaged radiator, broken windshield and other damage.

SEABREEZE.

SEABREEZE, Dec. 9.—In the absence of Aldermen Wilson and Kenney, both of whom were out of town, the regular meeting of the town council was postponed from Monday to Thursday night. Quite a number of taxpayers, interested in the water supply proposition, met at the town hall Monday night to hear the council debate.

The McNutt cottage, which has been occupied by tenants for the past two years, and was purchased by Col. T. F. Cordis last winter, will be moved away by the owner, who has let the contract to C. A. Ballough to erect a coquina garage near where the small wooden building now stands.

Contractor Ballough also has a gang of men finishing up the coquina wall at the George L. Johnson new winter home on North Peninsula drive, and putting in coquina posts for a pergola.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Ranslow and children, and mother, Mrs. E. J. Ranslow, arrived last week from Portsmouth, Me., and are located for the season in one of the Clarendon cottages on North Grandview avenue. Dr. Ranslow will again have charge of the Clarendon drug store, which will open the first of next month, in the new location in the Clarendon hotel on Ocean boulevard. The wooden building, which has been occupied as a drug store for several seasons past, it is understood will be moved; also the house known as the Sontag cottage on Ocean boulevard, so as to vacate the corner and give more ground for the hotel holdings. This improvement is in contemplation by President E. L. Potter and the hotel company, but may wait over for next season.

Mrs. Hesser arrived last week from Attleboro, Mass., where she has been visiting her daughter, and is occupying her cottage on North Halifax avenue. Mrs. Hesser spent the summer at Montecito, Tenn.

Oscar Benson and family came in Saturday from Marietta, Ga., to spend the winter in their cottage on North Halifax avenue. They were glad to get back to Florida. Mr. Benson says he was sick during the summer and often longed for his Seabreeze home and the tang of the grand old Atlantic ocean.

Messrs. Farrell and Case returned Saturday afternoon from a week's fishing bout at Coronado beach. The fishing was fine and they enjoyed the outing.

Mrs. E. G. Stevens came over from Sanford last week to fix up her house for winter rental. She will leave on Thursday on her return home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Dusenberry, whose new winter home on Glenview Burdick the past summer, arrived from Rochester, N. Y., the latter part of last week and have been with Mrs. Stevens, awaiting the arrival of furniture for their new home, in which the yhope to get comfortably settled in a short time.

The new concrete tennis court in the center of construction on the east grounds of the Princess Isseena will bid high for popular favor with the guests of the house.

Among recent arrivals at the Princess Isseena the following are prominent: Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Johnson of Philadelphia, Pa., who were here last winter and are again booked for season guests; Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Henderson, Alken, S. C., are at the Princess for a short stay; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Preston of Detroit, Mich., are at the Princess for a few days on their way to Palm Beach, where they have taken a cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Haynes, the hustling young proprietor of the Isseena, and his wife, motored up to St. Augustine Saturday and spent the night, returning home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron of Milwaukee, Wis., who leased for the season the McConnell residence on the Halifax, North Halifax avenue, through C. F. Burgman, arrived Monday night and are pleasantly domiciled in their winter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Oliver came over from Daytona, where they stopped temporarily for a week or ten days, and are guests at the Geneva for the winter. Mrs. Oliver, better known as Ruth Law, the aviatrix, will make flights and train her class in aviation from the Nautilus casino, North Seabreeze.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Fanning of Baltimore, Md., arrived from the north on Tuesday to spend the winter here, and are at the Geneva for the present. Mrs. Fanning is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stengle, proprietors of the Geneva.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Henry and two children of Cincinnati, Ohio, stopped off here to visit Mrs. Henry's mother, Mrs. Elder, and other relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Abercrombie, on North Halifax avenue. Mr. Henry left the first of this week for Miami, where he has a brother, and where he and his family will spend the winter. Mrs. Henry and children will leave the latter part of the week to join him.

W. R. Wharton is improving his winter home on North Halifax avenue by filling the yard to the sidewalk level and planting to grass.

The Baptist Mission Sunday school elected the following officers last Sunday afternoon at the Sunday school hour: Superintendent, Mrs. Frank Beebe; secretary, Miss Gertrude Northrup; organist, Mrs. P. A. Rivenberg. The Sunday school and church attendance is increasing each week with the return of winter residents, and the congregations are well pleased with the preaching of Rev. Alexander Rightmire. The mid-week prayer meetings are now held in the little chapel on Thursday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackmyer of Vermont, who regularly spend the winter in the Mott apartment house on North Peninsula drive, arrived this week and are settled in their former quarters.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lund have received the glad tidings that a beautiful girl baby has arrived at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bullon of Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Z. Pickering of Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania, arrived the latter part of last week and will be at the Ottawanna cottage until Mr. Pickering erects a bungalow on the rear of a lot he owns on Live Oak street.

One of the prettiest, if not the very prettiest of the smaller size new winter residences to be erected on the Peninsula first and last, is the new home of Mrs. M. D. King and her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Behse of Saginaw, Mich. It is a seven-room cottage, with all the most modern conveniences of a house twice the size; is trimmed in black cypress, and is as dainty as a bird's nest in furnishings. Mrs. King and Mrs. Behse drew the plan, and turned the contract over to L. Z. Burdick, who did the rest. The home includes a garage, and later in the season, when Mr. and Mrs. Behse join her mother, they will bring their car down with them. At present, Mrs. King's son, George C. King, and her little grandson, Master Breslin Behse, are with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Morse of Monroe, Wis., who have a new winter home on Live Oak street, and who, since their arrival have been occupying the Lichtenwalner home adjoining their own, until the arrival of furniture, are at last domiciled in their new home, although all of the furniture is not yet in. Mr. Morse, who is happiest when he is busiest, is erecting a small outside building to be used for washing and other purposes. Mr. and Mrs. Morse spent last winter in the Orr apartment house and made many friends during the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lichenwalner of Monroe, Wis., and Seabreeze, arrived a few days ago and are occupying their new two-apartment house adjoining the Morse home on the south. They have with them this winter Mr. and Mrs. Sauer of Akron, O., who last winter bought property on the peninsula.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Miller of Jackson, Mich., are occupying their winter home on Live Oak. They have been here for some time, but Mr. Miller is still busy brightening up the interior of the home, and otherwise improving the premises.

Milton Alexander has purchased through C. F. Burgman, real estate man, a lot on Wild Olive near the new bungalows erected last winter by the Jacksonville Realty company. Mr. Alexander expects to build next summer.

The Seabreeze basket ball team will play Sanford team Saturday night and the Daytona team Monday night. Both games will be played at the Nautilus casino.

GRATIFYING START IS MADE BY EDUCATORS

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED FRIDAY IN THE DAYTONA HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

One hundred per cent. of the high school teachers of the county were present. The absence of state high school inspector, Dr. Thackston, was a disappointment to the teachers, but Superintendent Sheppard very efficiently took charge of the organization. It was a day of real help and satisfaction to the teachers as many questions of vital importance in the progress of education were discussed, and helpful suggestions offered. The feeling of good fellowship encouraged informal discussions and brought out the best thought of the members.

Questions considered were: Course of study, promotions, system for permanent records, administration work, high school athletics. Various committees were appointed to take up the different parts of the work and report to a second meeting which is to be held at the Lakeland convention during the holidays.

Not the least of the day's enjoyments was a delightful dinner served in the domestic science rooms by the domestic science department of the Daytona high school. The dinner was efficiently served and speaks well for that department in our schools.

Origin of Word "Postal."
From the Latin word "positus," meaning stationed, this method of communication by means of relays placed at different points along the road came to be known as a post system and eventually as the postal system of today.

Objected to the "Buttoning."
Billie, aged three years, was playing with his sister, when they began to quarrel, so she left the room and closed the door. Billie became very angry and immediately screamed: "Unbutton that door!"

Cause of Paint Dust.
Paint dust is caused chiefly by rubbing old or new paint with dry sandpaper. This process is universally recognized as the most dangerous part of the painters' trade. It could be completely done away with by the use of cheap mineral oil to wet the sandpaper and catch the dust.

Could Not Last.
Dolly—"At last I have met my ideal! kind hearted, modest, patient, self-deceiving! But alas married!" Daisy—"Don't worry! No woman will live long with such a freak! You'll get a chance at him."—Boston Globe.

HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY FROM ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

ANNUAL CEREMONY OF MORE THAN USUAL INTEREST ATTRACTED GREAT CROWD TO THE NEW DAYTONA THEATER.

(From The Daytona Gazette-News)
The largest crowd that ever assembled at the New Daytona theater was attracted to that house Sunday evening to witness the annual memorial services held by Daytona Lodge, No. 1141, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

The doors were opened promptly at 7:00 o'clock and within a few minutes the theater was crowded and every available bit of standing room was occupied, while hundreds of people still besieged the doors, seeking to gain admission. To satisfy as many as possible of these disappointed persons, the windows and side entrance were thrown open, so that they might look on from the outside. Probably 1,000 or more people were within the building and the spectators included many residents of New Smyrna and DeLand, as well as nearby towns.

The Elks' memorial service is an annual event with all the lodges of the order and in connection with the ritualistic exercises by the officers and members of the local lodge an interesting musical program is arranged. On this occasion the address by Governor Park Trammell in eulogy of the departed members of the order and the presence of Saracina's Royal Italian band in its first appearance for the season were especial features of interest.

The members of the Elks' lodge filed into the theater at 7:30 o'clock, the officers taking their places in a semi-circle on the stage and the others occupying seats reserved for them in front of the stage.

An overture by the Crystal orchestra preceded the opening ceremonies by the lodge which were followed by a selection by Saracina's band. This was followed by a solo, "Face to Face," by W. J. McDonald, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Otis Pellicier.

An interesting address on the "History and Origin of the Order" was delivered by Rev. William J. Drew, pastor of the Congregational church. Mr. Drew explained that he was not a member of the order, but said that many of its good features were plainly visible to all and its history was open to the investigation of any one. He followed this history from the foundation of the order by a little band of actors in the city of New York to its present prominence as one of the strong fraternal organizations of the country, and dwelt upon its strong points of brotherly love and charity. Following the address by Mr. Drew, there was a violin solo, "Melodie," by Tschalkowsky, by A. E. Donnelly, with piano accompaniment by Miss Ella L. Williams.

Another selection by the band and then Governor Park Trammell was introduced by W. M. Hankins, exalted ruler of Daytona lodge of Elks, and delivered an eloquent eulogy of the departed members of the local lodge and Elks in general who had passed to the great beyond. The governor, who is a fluent and graceful speaker, dwelt on the virtues of the departed brothers and on the fundamental principle of the order that living or dead an Elk is never forgotten, quoting the Elk sentiment, "The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands; their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

Following the address, by the governor, came the closing ceremonies of the lodge, a selection by the New Daytona Theater orchestra and the singing of "The Vacant Chair," by a quartet composed of W. J. McDonald, Dr. Addison O'Neil, P. W. Hart and F. M. Terrill. Rev. S. D. Gammell delivered the benediction and the Crystal orchestra played an exit march.

The handsome bronze memorial tablet, presented to the Elks' lodge by Commodore C. G. Burgoyne, arrived Saturday and was given a prominent position in the front of the stage at the memorial services which were the most complete and interesting ever held by the lodge in this city.

Captains of Industry.
This title, while not new, was brought into general use by a luncheon in New York arranged in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia when he visited the United States in 1902. It was attended by men who by their genius, means or otherwise, were responsible, in whole or in part, for the creation and development of important industries in the United States. The late John Pierpont Morgan, the prominent financier, presided at the luncheon, and the men who attended it were designated "Captains of Industry."

Friend of the Farmer.
Dr. Marion Dorset, bi-chemist of the federal bureau of animal industry, is the scientist who first isolated the germ responsible for that farm scourge cholera in the hog. That accomplished, he perfected a serum to combat it, protected his processes by patents and then turned them over to the public, to be used without charge.

For Old Gilding.
Take some cotton and form it into a hard tuft as large as a nut and then dip it in strong liquid ammonia and apply it carefully to old gilding. This restores it pretty well if the gold is not worn off.

MAKE PINCUSHIONS.

They Are Excellent Christmas Gifts For Either Men or Women.
"Pin, pin—who's got the pin?" How often the cry goes up in the household! There should be many cushions for the elusive but necessary little household and toilet article, and here is an illustration of something which would make a very acceptable Christmas gift. This square pincushion was made of gayly colored silks and velvets and could be made of the odds and ends found in the scrap bag, for, of course, every one has a scrap bag. From this scrap bag many useful and beautiful gifts may be fashioned. The box cushion finished with a smashing bow of ribbon and thickly studded with pins would be a gift which would be acceptable to any household.

For the foundation of the pincushion a cardboard box, in any of the various sizes in which such boxes come nowadays, may be used. Of course it need not necessarily be a cube in shape, but that shape is handled most easily.

THE FINISHING TOUCH.

Much Depends on Way in Which the Christmas Gift is Done Up.

A Christmas gift is not really finished until it is wrapped, for really the festive wrapping means much to the success of the gift. The first impression comes from the wrapping, and the first impression goes a long way.

The shops are full of attractive boxes, decorated with Santa Clauses, holly, mistletoe, Christmas bells and other emblems of the happy season. These can be used to hold Christmas gifts of almost any kind, from handkerchiefs to umbrellas. Then there are the dainty little cards, inscribed with fitting sentiments and embellished with fitting emblems, that go in the box to bear the name of the sender and of the receiver. Next come layers of tissue paper, tied daintily with ribbon—holly covered, red and green striped, or tinsel ribbon. Instead of the tissue paper heavier paper decorated with holly can be used. It is a pretty custom to tuck a sprig of holly or mistletoe somewhere under the ribbon that wraps the package or to tie it to the ends of the ribbon. The little Christmas seals can be used to help hold the paper in place or to keep the ribbon from slipping.

After all the wrapping described there remains nothing but a safe outside box or paper, if the package is to go through the mail or express service. This outside wrapping must be clearly marked with your own name and the name of the person to whom the gift is sent. And it must be tightly tied with string, not ribbon. But it, too, can carry a bit of Christmas spirit with it, for it can be thickly pasted with Christmas seals of various sorts, and it can bear on its face one of the little posters that warn the recipient not to open until Christmas.

A Gift For a "Mere Man."
Traveling men find that their cuffs and collars have an elusive way of losing themselves. This case, with the slipper case attached, would be a very acceptable gift to the average traveler

As pictured here, it was made of French cretonne in shades of buff and brown. While ornamental, these cases and similar gifts may be put to very practical use and are constant reminders of the donors.

ALLANDALE.

ALLANDALE, Dec. 8.—Don Morris and wife drove their car down on Sunday and joined the Christians and the party went on to New Smyrna where the children of both parties were christened by the Rev. Mr. Baker of the Episcopal church, the Christians standing sponsor for John Donald Cameron Morris and the Morris for Allan Howes Christalney.

The Allandale company has presented C. Christalney with a new Hummobile, which arrived last Saturday.

Platt R. Spencer, of the Spencerian system of penmanship, paid a visit to Rusk's one day last week, driving over from Holly Hill where he is stopping for the present. The gentleman is eighty years old but quite active, as he drove over alone. He was very much pleased with what he saw of Allandale and talks strongly of locating here.

A party from Ohio have bought the lot north of the Hobbs bungalow and will build a buff brick bungalow this winter. This place will make the fourth attractive bungalow on the Riverside at Kirby Place.

Plans have been finished for alterations on the Baker bungalow that will add greatly to the beauty of the place and give more room. A garage will also be built at the rear of the lot.

At Ye Inn a two and one-half horse power gas engine and pump has been installed that will furnish water for the Inn and cottages in the vicinity.

The Five Hundred club meets with Mrs. J. H. C. Howes this week.

Mrs. C. F. Taylor and daughter, with Miss Flora Morrison, spent Sunday at the Inn.

All the Difference.
The little thefts and petty mischiefs are interrupted by the laws; yet if a mischief becomes public and great, acted by princes and effected by armies, and robberies be done by whole fleets, it is virtue, it is glory!—Jeremy Taylor.

HAWKS PARK

Sunday night the old folks and young folks gathered at the Bay View house and all joined in a singing "bee."

Alex McLane, who has been here for some time taking care of his father's home and grove, left Tuesday for New York.

Alexander McLane is now shipping some of his grapefruit to the northern markets.

The Hawks home in the Chadwick-Fernald tract is nearly completed. This makes the second house to be built on this tract this winter.

Our expert fisherman, Gilbert Ballentyne, has made two trips down the river this week after mullet, but says they are not bunching enough to suit him, although he brings back a boatload every time.

(Archie Futch, who left here to spend a few days in Daytona, is with us once more.

W. E. Scope of New Smyrna is picking the fruit on one of the groves he has charge of.

Mr. Wilkinson and Walter Wood have been picking a few palmetto berries, but report them quite scarce.

Mrs. Maggie Knapp was taken Tuesday to Dr. Klock's sanitarium in Daytona.

In the Nursery.
The temperature of the nursery should be about 65 degrees F. It is wise to have a thermometer in the room. This precaution is well worth taking, for a not infrequent cause of dyspepsia in the very young is the overheating of the nursery. The night temperature should be about 62 degrees F. As the child grows older it is not necessary to keep the temperature of the room above 58 degrees F. The windows should always be well opened when the child is absent from the nursery and each evening before the child is put to bed. This practice should be followed for a few minutes. To secure adequate ventilation, if there be an open fireplace, is not difficult, either by having the window opened very slightly at the top or by means of the door. It is an excellent idea where practicable to have an adjustable ventilator in the window itself. Currents of air are to be avoided.

They Are a Few Cherries.
Cherries were known in England 2,000 years ago, but their systematic cultivation dates only from the beginning of the sixteenth century. From the first Kent was the great cherry county, and it was once a favorite amusement in the Kentish orchards to try who could eat the largest quantity of the fruit at a sitting. Rusino, Venetian ambassador at the Court of James I, witnessed one of these contests when the winner was a young woman who disposed of 20 pounds of cherries, beating her nearest rival by only two and one-half pounds.

That Lost Balance.
A young lady while out boat riding one day in a park, attempted to change seats, and fell overboard. When she was brought up gasping and struggling, the usual crowd gathered around and asked how it happened. "Oh, I just lost my balance," she began, when a little Jewish boy, who had been listening open-mouthed, said: "Youse loose your balance, lad, I will find it for youse."

Good Joke on Sothern.

Mr. Samuel Sothern, the English actor, says the worst moment of his stage career was passed in a state of mental paralysis owing to a trick played on him by another actor. This actor, who had a passion for practical joking, and Mr. Sothern was appearing in the same play. It was a sentimental comedy in which Mr. Sothern had to make a long and effective speech with the stage all to himself. The practical joker got an alarm clock, timed the alarm very carefully, and set it upon a sideboard upon the stage. "At the very moment I opened my mouth to declaim," Mr. Sothern says, "it went off. I stood before the footlights literally gaping, whilst the blatant bell rang and thrummed and clattered through an eternity. It was a nightmare! I wanted to run, and could not; I wanted to speak, and could not. Suddenly from the gallery a piercing voice cried out: 'Say, boss, I guess your line's engaged!'"

Art of Sailing.

Shifting canvas so as to utilize the blow of the wind for driving ships upon the water is one of the very earliest of the arts through which man has continued to utilize the forces of nature. When steam power came into use the sailing craft was at the very highest stage of its development. The stately four-master, spreading a score of sheets to the wind, was queen of the waters a century ago. With the multiplication of steam-driven ships and, within the last decade or so, the amazing substitution of the internal combustion gasoline engines for sails upon vessels of the small-tonnage class raises the query as to whether the sailor's craftsmanship is not soon to be numbered among the lost arts. It begins to look as though the sailing ship and the horse might go out together.

Real Philanthropist.

"And so," said the man who lives in a flat to his friend who is a commuter, "your next door neighbor, you say, is a real philanthropist." "You bet he is," said the commuter, with enthusiasm; "why, he bought $10 worth of Sower seeds for my chickens last spring."—Ladies' Home Journal.

In a Light Comedy Role.

Two washerwomen were one day telling of the progress made by their various lads in their chosen work. "Tell me, Mrs. Casey," asked Mrs. Clancy, "what's your son, John, doing now?" "John's on the stage—he's a light comedian," answered Mrs. Casey. "Ye don't tell me!" exclaimed Mrs. Clancy, "an' would ye mind tellin' me what a 'light comedian' is?" "Well," explained Mrs. Casey, "in me son's case it's this: He plays a silent part behind a black curtain with his mouth to a hole, and in front is a candle, and when Alkali Ike shoots at the candle, John blows it out."—Saturday Journal.

Milarious Announcement.

Mrs. Noowed—"Oh, John, our cook is going to leave us in the morning!" Mr. Noowed—"What makes you think so?" "Why, she's been sitting on the kitchen floor with a bottle in her hand, singing. And when I asked her what was the matter, she threw the bottle at me and said, 'We won't go home until morning!'"—Exchange.

A Primal False Step.

"Why don't you propose to that girl?" You like her and I'm sure she would have you." "All true, but there is an insuperable obstacle between us." "All family or religious obstacles can be overcome." "Nothing like that. I got a little too gay when I first met her and told her I was getting fifty a week, whereas I am only getting twenty-five."

Chivalry Has Trials.

Chivalry exacts a certain indulgence of feminine whims from the male sex, but there is a limit, according to a Kansas City man who, after getting a divorce from his wife, asked the court to restore her maiden name. He says his wife twice attempted suicide, flirted with a wife-murderer in jail and now is playing baseball with a "bloomer girls" team in Oklahoma. It is not to be wondered at that the judge regretted his inability to comply with the request.—Louisville Times.

The New Agriculture.

The term "new agriculture" applied to the farming methods that have been made possible within the past twenty years or so by the advance of science. "Dry farming," the "inoculation" of soils, the amazing results of irrigation and of experimentation at the state and government agricultural stations, "intensive" farming, deep plowing, seed selection, crop rotation and the application of nitrogenous elements have completely revolutionized the farmers' art, giving them returns that were not dreamed of a few decades ago.

Good Sense.

To Lady Cardigan is attributed the following somewhat pert comment when a very ignorant person was complimented on his good sense in being present: "I don't wonder," she said, "at his possessing a large stock of good sense. He never spends any."

Making Mistakes.

The wisest man is likely to make a mistake, but he isn't the wisest man if he makes another like it.

Diversified Plantings Are Safe Plantings

Never before was the wisdom of diversification in both farming and fruit growing so apparent as now. The ill-effect of the one crop policy is shown in the present depression of the country. It will protect you from the ravages of a single planting, if properly arranged, provides the greatest profits and an all the year-around income.

Home-Made Ointment.

The following is a recipe for a simple home made ointment, which is excellent for applying to cuts and bruises: One teaspoonful each of olive oil, turpentine, spirits of camphor and coal oil. Of course, any amount desired may be made, but the proportion must be as given here.

One Day.

citizens. Success has been stamped all over the local branch of the citrus exchange from the very first and the way the affairs of the association have moved along has been a bitter dose to the dyed-in-the-wool knockers of the exchange.

When I was a boy I used to hear frequent applications of the old saying that the shoemaker's children always wear the most ragged shoes, and it's no insinuation to say I think it was a good joke that C. G. Herrick was late to church last Sunday morning because his clock was slow. But along with the "joke" comes the thought that any man who makes it his business to keep watches and clocks in perfect running order and keeping good time and is honest enough to acknowledge that a slow clock made him late to church, can be trusted with anything from a high priced watch to a family secret.

By the way, I wonder what has become of the One-Circle club. I understand that came about as near being a really harmonious organization as any this town has ever had, and if there is any chance to keep up a harmonious organization in this town I'm for helping to push it along. For one, I'd like to see that One-Circle bunch get started again, for they tell me they used to have some good times at the meetings and that the welfare of the city didn't suffer any because of the discussions of live topics. However, I would like to see the scope of the organization enlarged to take in more members, and am frank to say I'd like to be a member myself. What's the answer?

BEGIN YOUR BUYING BEFORE THE RUSH

Do your Christmas shopping early and send your Christmas packages early is the slogan this year. Not only are the merchants in favor of the shop early idea but the post-office carriers are anxious to get the packages early in order to lessen the strain incumbent to the Christmas rush.

Postmaster Dohn has requested the public to not only shop early but ship early and his idea is to have the parcel post packages made ready now and marked "Not to be opened until Christmas," and in this way the donors and recipients can have the packages sent and received on time and all will be peace and happiness Christmas day.

This idea can and should be carried out by the shopping public and it is just as easy to purchase or make presents and send them next week as to wait until the week of Christmas. The merchants now have their Christmas stocks on display, and you can easily determine from the advertisements in the News just where to purchase your Christmas gifts.

Charged with fighting, Luke Webster, white, and Dan Hooks, colored, were before Mayor Newell Monday evening and each was fined $1.

Immense Output of Linen. The 12,000,000 pounds worth of linen which is the average yearly output of the United Kingdom would wrap the earth at the equator seven times.

CITRUS EXCHANGE ORDERS

PACKING HOUSES TO CLOSE

Because of the demoralized condition of the northern markets and the poor condition of much of the fruit being shipped by independent packers at this time, orders have been received to cease operations at the local exchange packing house until better conditions prevail. The citrus fruit market has been in poor condition almost since the season opened because of the efforts to rush immature and damaged fruit to the north. The Florida Citrus Exchange has made strong efforts to induce the growers to hold back their fruit for better conditions and prices and little shipping has been done by the exchange, except on orders. The local packing house closed down Tuesday night.

A SCRAP OF PAPER

A Story For Thanksgiving.

By RUTH GRAHAM

Edward Olcott was convalescent, and the morning was a marvel of sunshine. There is a delicious feeling about first convalescence that I fancy is explainable from the contrast between suffering and the relief from suffering. It seemed to Olcott that he was never so well in his life, and yet it would have been well nigh impossible for him to get out of the invalid chair in which he had been wheeled to the glass in closed porch of the hospital.

He had not been there long before an attendant dropped a newspaper in his lap. Unfolding it, he noticed some words written in pencil in a woman's hand on the margin. They read:

Dear Patient—I am very sorry for you. I hope you will get comfort from this paper, which I intend to put in the box at the terminal of the railroad for papers to go to the hospital. I pity you especially being confined on account of illness when Thanksgiving is coming on. Cheer up! On next Thanksgiving day I trust you will be in condition to enjoy a fine Thanksgiving dinner.

This communication to an unknown dear patient was signed with two initials. E. A. The newspaper was a weekly issued at a place called Edgewater, some twenty miles from the city.

"That little note," said Olcott to himself, "was written by a girl. No one else would have signed her initials. The place in which she lives is made up of residences of well to do people. I question if in all there are 500 houses. I shall have no difficulty in discovering who E. A. is, and I propose to dine with her next Thanksgiving. I would do so this year but for the fact that there isn't time and I couldn't eat a Thanksgiving dinner."

Olcott was a young man of means. The reason why he was at a hospital instead of his own home was twofold—first, he was a bachelor, without a near relative, and, second, he had been recommended by his physician to go to a hospital as the most convenient place in which to be ill. Possibly in his convalescent state he was especially impressive. Be that as it may, he read the paper that had been given him, conjuring up visions of the person who wrote the message on the margin. When he had finished the paper's perusal he tore off the message for preservation and future use.

Olcott was at an age when an appreciation for the pleasures of social life begins to lose its edge. When he was twenty he fancied that he was courted because of his attractiveness. Now that he was twenty-seven he had come to understand that he was courted principally for what his income represented. He had not lived at home since the death of his mother, when he was nineteen. His illness, during which he had been under the care of paid nurses, had made him sensible of what might be the tender solicitude of one who loved him. Sundry young ladies he had met in society had endeavored to make it appear to him that they appreciated him for himself, but he believed that any other man who could give them a home would do as well.

For these reasons he was attracted to this person who had a heart to take in an unknown person in a hospital from whom there was scarcely a possibility that she could derive any benefit.

She might possibly be old and homely, but he did not believe she was. At any rate, as soon as he was discharged from the hospital he proposed to hunt her up—that is, if she lived in Edgewater. If not, there was not much hope of finding her.

When the next Thanksgiving season came round Olcott had made the acquaintance of Miss Edith Arnold of Edgewater and had proved by securing a specimen of her handwriting that she was the person who had contributed the newspaper that he had read as a convalescent. There had been no great difficulty in this. All he had to do was to go to Edgewater, join a club there, consisting of young men and women, make the acquaintance of the residents and look out for a girl whose initials were E. A.

Miss Arnold was, as he had supposed very young. She was barely eighteen. Olcott paid her a great deal of attention, at which she was naturally flattered. He discovered that her heart was as tender for the afflicted as he had supposed, and it was not long before he had won that heart for himself.

All this while he had the pencil message that he had torn from the newspaper in his portmanteau. But he said nothing about it to Miss Arnold, who supposed that their meeting had occurred by chance. Olcott had resolved when in the hospital that he would eat his next Thanksgiving dinner with her, and he was working up to that point. This, too, was very easy, for a few weeks before Thanksgiving he asked her to be his wife, and she accepted his proposition. Under the circumstances it was quite in order that he should be invited to take his Thanksgiving dinner at the Arnolds'. Toward its close he took from his portmanteau the scrap he had torn from the newspaper and passed it around the table. It was easily recognized as Edith's work. Then Olcott said:

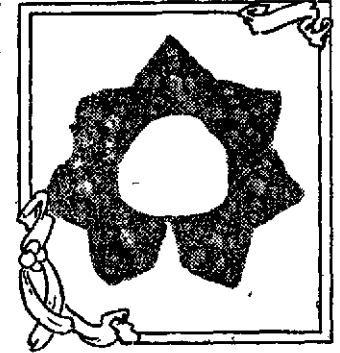

"When I in a hospital I tore this message of sympathy from a newspaper that fell into my hands. I vowed that I would eat my next Thanksgiving dinner with the writer, and I have kept my resolve."

HANDMADE ARTICLES ARE USEFUL GIFTS

Women Can Make Pretty Things
With the Crochet Hook.

WITH a spool of cotton or linen, a crochet hook, some time and perseverance, many beautiful Christmas gifts can be made by the woman who has a desire to give and very little money to gratify her desire. The lace collar illustrated here, while it may appear elaborate, is, in fact, quite within the accomplishment of the fairly skilled worker with the crochet hook.

shop. With this will come directions for crocheting. This is a standard pattern of rose crochet, and all shops keep it. Any other pattern which would be simpler to execute would be just as acceptable to the recipient of the gift.

This is only a Christmas suggestion should you be in despair, as so many women are at holiday time, what to give one's best friend, who simply must be remembered.

Or if a bag be preferred to a collar here are two to select from, and if the girl or woman who receives one is not pleased she will be a very difficult person, indeed.

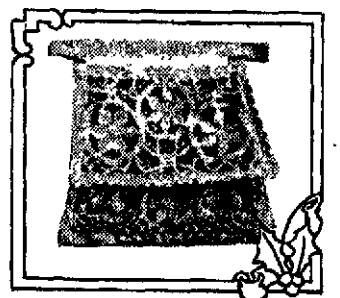

The bag in this illustration is of the beautiful grape pattern, not difficult to execute, but very showy with its leaves in solid crochet and its fruit, little round crochet balls. Miss Edith could use it through the winter in a variety of ways—as a theater bag, a bridge bag, for handkerchief, powder puff, the inevitable vanity mirror or as a pretty case for her fancy work, for the bit of embroidery which must not be soiled in the making.

Then when summer comes, if the bag has survived the vicissitudes of the winter months, it can be carried with dainty summer dresses. So do not fear that your gift of a bag will not be found useful and acceptable. The fertile brain of the woman who receives it will devise many uses for it.

There is still another bag which would make a pretty case for handkerchiefs. Lined with a dainty shade of taffeta and with a sachet bag tucked away inside, scented with the recipient's favorite scent, this would be an ideal gift. And used as a handkerchief case in the intimacy of your friend's boudoir it would pleasantly serve to remind her of the donor many times a day.

Bootees For Baby.

A pair of wee bootees will be welcomed. They may be made of any soft cloth, kid or chambray, bound with baby ribbon and finished with bows of ribbon, with ribbon ties at the ankle. The soles are sewed to the uppers when wrong side out, and then the shoe is turned.

When Everybody Eats Florida Citrus Fruit the Demand will Exceed the Supply

Citrus fruits are becoming necessities instead of luxuries. The people of the United States are learning their many merits and uses. Where formerly they were regarded solely as breakfast fruits, now they are eaten at other meals and used freely in cookery and confections. All this means a great deal for Florida, which grows the finest citrus fruits of the world. The production of her superior oranges and grapefruit can hardly keep pace with the inevitable increase in demand due to the above causes.

Buckeye Nurseries Catalog— A Citrus Handbook

All the problems that arise in the culture of oranges and grapefruit are fully covered in this book. It tells how to select a location for the grove and describes the operations necessary to bring trees into profitable bearing. Everything is based on practical experience—there are no theories in the advice given. No matter what citrus fruits you are growing or intend to plant, this book will be of service to you. It has been written to help alike the man with the grove and the man who expects to have one. Every person interested in the citrus industry of Florida is welcome to a copy of this book, printed at great expense. Write today for one—edition is limited.

NEGRO UNDER DEATH SENTENCE ATTEMPTS TO MURDER ANOTHER

BEN HOLDEN STABS NEGRO IN JAIL REPEATEDLY WITH A
RUSTY FORK—CONDITION SERIOUS.

Already under sentence of death for the murder of Morton Haines, Ben Holden attempted to murder another negro named Will B. Rosburr in the county jail at Deland Monday afternoon. It seems that the fact that several of the negro prisoners had in some way gotten possession of pocket knives came to the knowledge of Sheriff Smith, and that he made a search of all the prisoners. He was rewarded by finding wicked knives, which were confiscated. Holden was one of the negroes that had one.

Holden accused Rosburr of taking the sheriff off, and with a rusty fork stabbed Rosburr repeated the back and shoulders, inflicting wounds that may prove fatal.

Implied Rebuke.

A few days ago a little friar, ours, three years old, stopped to daily visit, but as we had other pany we did not pay much attention to her chatter until she said that would go home. I asked her to over again, and she answered fully, "Well, if you'd like to have I'll stay now."—Chicago Tribune

BERLIN IN WAR TIMES

City Aflame With Enthusiasm When War Is Declared.

Emperor Received Plaudits of People With a Stern and Inscrutable Face—Ordinary Life of Metropolis Not Normal.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

London.—Dr. H. J. Poutsma, secretary of the Railway Men's union of South Africa, has just arrived in London from Berlin and tells an interesting story of conditions there since the war began.

Doctor Poutsma is one of the nine labor leaders who were deported from South Africa several months ago in connection with the general strike there. He was in Berlin for six weeks after the outbreak of war and had a rather exciting time making his way slowly to England. He said:

"I left Berlin ten days ago, and have just arrived in England. My stay in the German capital will be unforgettable, so crowded has it been with vivid impressions and great events.

"At the risk of my life I left Berlin with my wife and children on that date with a Dutch passport I had been lucky enough to obtain. With the help of my knowledge of the Dutch language and through the kindness of a foreign ambassador, I managed to slip over the border into Holland.

"When it became known that Germany had declared war, the whole of Berlin was aflame with an enormous enthusiasm. The streets were dense with marching throngs singing the patriotic songs of the Fatherland, and making their way to the kaiser's palace. It looked as if the whole city had gone mad.

"There was at that time a confident belief that Great Britain would remain neutral. Just after Great Britain had entered the conflict I was told that no British subject would be allowed to leave the country, and I had to report myself every day to the police. I had in my possession an English passport which I had taken out only two hours before England sent her ultimatum to Germany.

"During my enforced stay in the capital I saw the entrance of the kaiser, the kaiserin and the crown prince with his wife and the princes from Potsdam. It was a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. The picture of the emperor is a vivid memory. He did not bow once in acknowledgment of the shouts of the crowd. The crown prince and his wife nodded and smiled continually, but the emperor sat with one hand at his golden helmet, stern and inscrutable, a figure of destiny. There was not during the whole time the faintest flicker of a smile.

"Scenes very different from these occurred on the arrival of the refugees from eastern Prussia in consequence of the Russian advance. They came in thousands, rich and poor alike, packed in freight cars, with all their belongings in small handbags or bundles. The women and children were crying. Their arrival created a very bad impression in Berlin, and gave rise to alarming speculations that the Russians would be in Berlin before they were expected.

"Meanwhile the ordinary life of the city was not quite normal, although the authorities did their best to keep it so. Food prices were regulated by the government as one step to keep off panic. From my house I could see Zeppelins and aeroplanes continually circling overhead. Nearly all the tram conductors had gone to the war and the trams were equipped with women conductors, chiefly wives of the conscript tram-men.

"It must be said that the organization and equipment of the German army is remarkable and the mobilization went like clockwork. There is a feeling of cocksureness about victory in Berlin. The people feel that Belgium was stupid not to allow Germany to march through, and that the severe punishment inflicted is quite just."

WAR WOUNDS HEAL RAPIDLY

Antiseptic Treatment and the Velocity of Modern Bullets Aid Recovery.

London.—The rapidity with which the wounds of soldiers are healed, and the practical absence of blood-poisoning cases, has been a surprise in view of the "deadly effectiveness" of the modern army weapons.

"The antiseptic treatment of wounds almost immediately after their infliction has a great deal to do with the fact that cures are effected in such a short time as has been demonstrated in the London hospitals," said one of the physicians in attendance upon the wounded.

"While surgery has made wonderful strides in the last decade, the results might have been different were it not that the antiseptic preventive measures have been applied.

"Another important reason lies in the fact that the bullet fired from a modern rifle travels with such velocity as to obviate the danger of a ragged wound."

German Spy Shot Down.

Paris.—A dispatch from Troyes, France, to the Havas agency states that an announcement comes from Romilly-sur-Seine, a town 23 miles northwest of Troyes, that the French brought down a German aeroplane while it was flying over that city.

FIGHT ALONG CANAL

Britisher Tells of Birthday Present From Kaiser.

English Soldier, Although Wounded, Keeps Up Lively Fusillade Upon Banks of Approaching Germans—Another Version of Sea Fight.

London.—Private G. A. Turner, now lying wounded in the London hospital, sends the following account home of one day's fighting in France.

"I am still living, though a bit knocked about. I got a birthday present from the kaiser. On Sunday, 23d, we had rifle inspection at 11 a. m., and were ordered to fall in for bathing parade at 11:30. While we were waiting for another company to return from the river the Germans commenced to shell the town. We fell in about 1 p. m., an hour and a half afterwards, to go to the scene of the attack. Shells were bursting in the streets as we went. We crossed a bridge over the canal under artillery fire, and stood doing nothing behind a mill on the bank for some time.

"Then some one cried out that the Germans were advancing along the canal bank, and our company was ordered to go along. Then the Germans opened fire with their guns at about five hundred yards with shrapnel, and the scene that followed beggars description. Several of us were laid full length behind a wooden fence about half an inch thick. The German shells burst about three yards in front of it. It was blown to splinters in about ten minutes. None of us expected to get out alive.

"They kept us there about an hour before they gave us the word to retire. I had just turned round to go back when I stopped one. It hit you with an awful thump, and I thought it had caught me at the bottom of the spine, as it numbed my legs for about half an hour.

"When I found I could not walk, I gave it up, just after I got my first view of the Germans. They were coming out of a wood about four hundred yards away, all in a heap together, so I thought as I was done for I would get a bit of my own back, and so I started pumping a bit of lead into them.

"I stuck there for about three-quarters of an hour, and fired all my own ammunition and a lot belonging to two more wounded men who were close to me—about three hundred rounds altogether, and as it was such a good target, I guess I accounted for a good lot of them.

"Then I suddenly discovered I could walk, and so I set off to get back. I had to walk about one hundred and fifty yards in the open, with shrapnel bursting around me all the way.

"A man who was at Paardeburg and Magerfontein in South Africa said they were nothing to what we got that Sunday. Out of 240 men of my company only about twenty were uninjured."

Mrs. D. L. Wilson of Hunslet sends a letter received from her husband, a seaman of the Bacchantes. He says:

"You will have read of our victory in the North sea. It was fine. Our ship brought the dead and wounded and the prisoners back. A grim job it was, too. I only wish the whole German fleet would come out. We may get a chance of coming home soon. Their firing is rotten, while our men behind the guns are perfect. They get a hit every time.

"The boudiers won't come out. That was the reason our ships had to try to drive them out. You see the place is all mined, and if a ship runs into one of these mines it means destruction.

"The commander of the Liberty, a torpedo-boat destroyer, asked his ship's company if they would volunteer to go up Kiel harbor with him, and every man said 'Yes,' although it looked certain death. Up they went and got under the forts of Helgoland and let rip at the German cruisers in the harbor. One of the wounded sailors of the Liberty told me that the shells fired at them were enough to sink a fleet.

"Our ship had only one torpedo and one round of ammunition left. So they turned around and came out, when a shrapnel shell struck the Liberty's mast, killing the gallant commander and three others. The coxswain, although wounded, brought the ship safely to our fleet that was waiting outside. We pray to God that we may come off victorious, and I am confident we shall, as every man jack in the fleet has the heart of a lion."

More Gettysburg Dead.

Gettysburg, Pa.—While George Woodward was hunting for bullets in the field of the Almshouse farm near Barlow's knoll he saw what he thought was human bones and began scratching with his umbrella, unearthing a human skull. He then secured a shovel and dug up the bones of three men. Together with the bones were found two five dollar gold coins of the dates of 1833 and 1844, two portions of shoes and nine brass buttons of the coat of arms of New York state, a number of iron trouser buttons and several musket caps.

Must Have Bath and Tea.

Paris.—No matter how great the danger, the British soldiers will not be kept from their bath or their tea. Between two recent attacks on a town the British officers took tea and the men had a "tab" in the river.

As to Age of Gunpowder. Comparison of the terms used by Sir Francis Bacon to describe the effects of explosive powder in three different places shows that he was writing of the same powder. Now his letter on the "Secret Works of Nature" would appear to have been written to William of Auvergne, archbishop of Paris, who died in 1248 or 1249. It seems, then, that the explosive properties of black powder were known in France and England before the middle of the thirteenth century.

Origin of Knitting. Knitting is a Scotch invention of the fifteenth century, and Scotch knitted stockings soon found their way to France. A guild of stocking knitters, too, was soon formed, with St. Flacore as their patron saint. Hand knitting was not long left without machinery as a rival, for it was as long ago as 1589 that William Lee invented the knitting frame.

Men Meant for Leaders. Some things are better as private property. Others ought to be shared. In daily life, Robert Louis Stevenson's rule of distribution is a good one: "Keep your fears to yourself, but share your courage with others." Those who follow this rule always become leaders in the end by sheer force of character growth.

Studebaker

"As you think about Automobiles, remember two things:

"1. Studebaker cars are built in the largest and best factories in the industry.

"2. The man who deals with Studebaker makes no mistake.

"These two axioms sum up all the automobile wisdom any man need know. Remember them today, next fall, next year—and whenever the automobile question comes to your mind"

The Oldest The Best The Reliable

PATENT MEDICINES

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH BULLETIN.

Dope and death. That's the combination that goes with the use of patent medicines. No reputable physician would direct the use of a prescription of which he didn't know the exact contents and their exact proportions. Each ingredient has its precise duty to perform in the relief of the patient, and the prescription is prepared to meet the conditions revealed by the professional diagnosis.

Yet, the layman, ignorant of the demands of his own physical condition, unskilled even in the rudiments of a scientific diagnosis, unconsciously exercising a sublime faith in an allwise Providence to overrule any mistake of his own weak human judgment, deliberately does himself with some concoction that may be a poison or an elixir—he knows no difference, and he is willing to take the chance, with slow death as the option.

The market is flooded with bottles, beautifully labelled and brilliantly attractive. If one may trust the label and the wrapper, the particular concoction will work a sure and guaranteed cure for every physical trouble from corns to consumption. Usually there is an exhaustive outline of symptoms of various diseases, which the gullible reader may recognize as particularly his own, and from the large assortment he may select any one or more and proceed to a "home treatment" entirely independent of the doctors. He is reminded, however, that several bottles of the medicine may be required to work a "complete cure."

And so the work of self-destruction and death goes on at a frightfully increasing rate.

Now what are the facts? In the majority of cases the so-called patent medicines are made up of ingredients that cost from three to ten cents for a bottle that retails for a dollar. Some profit. And in a majority of cases—almost un-versally—the most active contained agent is hashish, opium or alcohol, all of them narcotics, all of them stupefying or perverting brain activity and weakening brain power, and all of them creating the desire for more, always more.

Certain of the so-called proprietary medicines are not to be classed with patent medicines. These are frequently the prescriptions of eminent physicians who authorize their preparation on a commercial scale by reputable chemists, whose responsibility guarantees that the printed formula has been faithfully followed, and the formula is usually printed on the label.

But the use of even proprietary medicines is dangerous excepting on the prescription of the doctor, and then only as he prescribes. Because a teaspoonful in water once in three hours will be beneficial gives no reason to suspect that a tablespoonful once an hour will hasten relief.

Florida has had a recent emphatic illustration of the harmfulness of the use of these narcotics. The business manager of one of the important newspapers of the state, was killed by a man who, it was alleged in his defense, had been dosing himself with an alleged "headache powder." It contained a considerable percentage of hashish and he had been made insane, had lost control of all will power and of the ability to control his own actions. The result was the unnecessary, cruel death of an able man in the prime of a useful life.

There is but one safe way—never swallow or administer a medicine, patent, proprietary or any other kind except at the direction of a reputable physician. And don't take the responsibility of dosing yourself with a prescription that he ordered a year ago. Your case may have changed since then. It may not fit now.

Be sane if you would stay sane.

DECISION OF THE STATE SUPREME COURT
ON APPEAL IN MANDAMUS AGAINST TREASURER

Following is a copy of the decision handed down by the state supreme court on the appeal from the decision of the circuit court in the case of the mandamus of the State bank against the city treasurer: In the supreme court of Florida, June term, A. D. 1914.

D. C. Silvers, city treasurer, plaintiff in error, vs. State ex rel State Bank of New Smyrna, defendant in error.

An alternative writ of mandamus was issued from the circuit court of Volusia county alleging that the relator bank duly presented twenty city warrants to the respondent city treasurer for payment; that the said D. C. Silvers at the time of such presentment did have in his possession, custody or control funds of the said city of New Smyrna sufficient to pay all, or at least a large part of said warrants, yet wholly neglected or refused to pay said warrants, or any of them. The alternative writ commanded the city treasurer to pay the twenty warrants, or to show cause for not doing so. A demurrer to the alternative writ was interposed, one ground being that it is not alleged "that the respondent has the ability to perform the acts" commanded. The demurrer was overruled, an answer or return was made, and testimony taken. A peremptory writ of mandamus was issued, and the respondent took writ of error.

It does not appear by the alternative writ that the respondent had funds to make the payments when the writ was issued, and the return supported by the evidence shows that the respondent did not have funds to pay the twenty warrants. There was consequently error in issuing the alternative writ and in awarding the peremptory writ of mandamus. The relator must show the respondent's duty and ability to comply with the mandatory writ as was done in Ray vs. Wilson, 29 Fla. 342, 10 South. Rep. 613, 14 L. R. A. 773. See county commissioners of Duval county vs. city of Jacksonville, 36 Fla. 196, 18 South. Rep. 339, 29 L. R. A. 416.

The judgment awarding the peremptory writ is reversed.

ALLEGED AGREEMENT
STOPS FENCE REMOVAL

That there was an agreement of some kind regarding a crossing over the F. E. C. railroad tracks at Julia street made between the city council and the officials of the road several years ago, when Dimick street was opened, is the statement made by several members of the council, but all efforts to find any record of such agreement has so far been unsuccessful.

The council recently authorized the mayor to remove the fence built by the railroad across Julia street, but action has been delayed by the mayor pending the efforts to find some trace of the reported agreement. The matter was taken up with the railroad officials through the city attorneys, but up to this time no move has been made to remove the fence, and further efforts to get some satisfaction out of the railroad officials will be made. Unless a copy of this alleged agreement can be produced the mayor will remove the fence.

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES TREE
MACHINE IS BADLY DAMAGED

Reports from Daytona yesterday were that an automobile owned and driven by J. H. Reddick of this city was badly damaged when it ran into a tree on South Ridgewood avenue Wednesday night. None of the occupants of the car was seriously injured, but the car is said to have received a bent axle, damaged radiator, broken windshield and other damage.
